NEW ROOSEVELT IDEAS THREATEN CONGRESS TIEUP

Trust Laws and Tax Broadening Next.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—Following through on the 4½ billion dollar "spending cure" he advocated yesterday in a special message to congress and a fireside chat to the nation, President Roosevelt today announced he will ask congress shortly to bolster anti-trust laws and to abolish tax exempt securities.

The President's announcement of his intentions met with concern on Capitol Hill. It was generally believed two additional messages on top of the relief and public works program, which was dumped in the lap of congress yesterday, would play havoc with plans for a May adjournment.

Push Pump Priming Plan.

Congressional leaders set to work to press for early enactment of the latest administration pump priming program. In his fireside chat last night Mr. Roosevelt said that the existence of the democratic form of government depends upon defeating the forces of depression and that because business had failed to stem the recession tide the government would take aggressive steps.

In the meantime the federal reserve board, acting at the suggestion of the President, reduced bank reserve requirements by 750 million dollars to provide a 2 billion 150 million dollar increase in excess reserves which would permit a credit expansion of 10 billion dollars.

The reserve board's action followed the treasury's move to expand the nation's credit base yesterday by the desterilization of gold. A swift stroke of Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau's pen late yesterday released the entire 1 billion 391 million dollar hoard of inactive gold and placed it in the treasury's working fund.

SEC Eases Regulations.

A few hours later the Securities and Exchange commission entered into the pump priming picture by issuing tentative regulations to ease and facilitate issuance of securities by small firms. The SEC said its recommendations were the result of a study still under way to simplify the mechanics and costs of stock issuance.

The SEC made public three tentative steps which will be effective over the next six months pending the adoption of a permanent program. The three regulations are: Establishment of a unit to advise and aid prospective security issuers in connection with difficult registration problems, reduction in the amount of fiscal information required for registration of small issues by established concerns, and broadening of the exception of issues under $100,000 of established enterprises.

New Tax Source Considered.

The President, in his pump priming message, asked congress to note the need for eliminating exemptions on future bond issues of all government agencies and for subjecting all governmental employés to both state and federal income taxes.

At present federal employés do not pay state income taxes and state, county, and municipal employés do not pay federal income taxes. The theory behind such exemptions is that the government cannot tax the states and the states cannot tax the government.

The President told reporters at a well attended press conference that he would have a simple message on tax exempt bonds of all kinds—federal, state, and local—and governmental salaries of all kinds.

Asked whether abolition of exemptions would not require a constitutional amendment, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not think so. He said there has been a growing belief in view of recent Supreme court decisions that the federal government could tax state salaries and securities by statutory action.

Plan Sponsored by Borah.

There never has been any question that the government has the power to tax its own securities. Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] sponsored a resolution in the pending tax bill calling for an end to tax exempt securities which was adopted.

Senator Bennett Clark [D., Mo.], who is among those convinced that the federal government can tax state salaries and securities, introduced a

MAGNETIC WAVES CRIPPLE WIRES OVER WIDE AREA

One of the severest magnetic disturbances in years virtually disrupted telegraphic, teletype, and several other wire services over most of the country early today. Only east and west lines were affected. Even ocean cables out of Miami, Fla., felt the disturbance. At Minneapolis wires were burdened with an extra burden of 500 volts. Teletype machines pied, Morse instruments were stilled, and in some instances railroads were forced to shut off their communicating systems to protect their electric equipment from hot wires. The disturbance started at 12:05 a. m. and was most intense at 1:45 a. m.

A $30,000,000 PARK IS EASTER GIFT TO CHICAGO

600 Acres Created on Lake Shore.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Chicago receives a 30 million dollar Easter greeting this week.

Burnham park, huge area of made land that once was open water and that now harmoniously links Jackson park with downtown, is practically finished.

During recent warm days engineers and landscape artists have crowned four years of difficult and costly work with an intensive drive that has smoothed out chaos and has made the new park worthy of the memory of the great architect and city planner whose name it bears.

Welcome Citizens to Park.

The toilers of the park district authority, from spademan to general superintendent, feel that now they are waranted in saying, "Welcome, fellow citizens!"

Chicago has 6,000 acres of parks.

For four years one-tenth of that acreage has been only a promise—and not a cheering one. That was Burnham, and people wearily wondered what the clamor of derricks, the rumble of underground work that made no spectacular showing, the building of retaining walls, and the spading and filling and grading would finally produce.

Today all that work is done, and it has produced one of the most inviting waterfront parks in the United States.

Grand View of Shore Line.

Burnham park represents the toil of 15,000 men since 1935 and the planning of some of the best of American engineers and landscape artists. Fifteen thousand men have not, however, been steadily employed on the work. That figure is a grand total.

Where were a hideous and disheartening area of rotting piles, a slovenly hugger-mugger of huge blocks of stone and hundreds of acres of city dumpings, visitors now see smooth lawns, abundant groves of recently planted elms, thick coppices of ornamental foliage, and a dignified stone shelter from the top of the fifty foot tower of which they will obtain a grand view of our incomparable shore line—"a waterfront," says George Terry Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district, "unequaled by that of any other city in the world—not even by Stockholm."

Heroic Border for Lake.

Where was the hugger-mugger of rocks so huge that it seemed as if they never could be lifted into harmony with a sylvan scene, the citizen will behold hundreds of square yards of pyramided stone that derricks have lifted into harmony and that now make a heroic border and bulwark along our sea of sweet water.

He will behold the rapid planting of trees which in a few years will screen from the park area the dreary expanse of railroad tracks which bound much of the western edge of Burnham park and which seemed an irremedial disfigurement of what once was—and may again be—one of the choicest parts of the city.

Chaos Turned to Beauty.

In short, chaos has been covered with beauty that will increase with the passing of every year.

39 Streamline Trains to Run Out of Chicago

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

On June 15 Chicago will become the streamlined passenger train center of the world. Railroads will have in operation a total of thirty-nine streamlined trains arriving and departing. Of these twenty-one will be pulled by Diesel electric locomotives and eighteen by streamlined steam locomotives.

This fleet of modern trains, representing an investment of many millions of dollars, was put into operation in a little more than three years. Chicago's first streamlined train service was started by the Burlington on April 21, 1935—to St. Paul-Minneapolis.

Sixteen Hours to N. Y.

On the same day that the new streamliners begin to operate the Pennsylvania railroad's Broadway Limited and the New York Central's Twentieth Century Limited will travel between Chicago and New York in sixteen hours, half an hour faster than at present.

In addition to the Broadway, the Pennsylvania will place in operation on June 15 streamlined versions of its General from Chicago to New York, its Liberty Limited from Chicago to Washington, and its Spirit of St. Louis from St. Louis to New York. To maintain this streamlined service—the largest fleet for any eastern road—nine trains will be required, of which six will run in and out of Chicago, two each for the Broadway, General, and Liberty, and three in and out of St. Louis.

At Least Two Centuries.

There will be at least two Twentieth Century Limiteds to maintain this train in operation between Chicago and New York, and possibly more for operation as extra sections.

The new Broadway Limited will consist of nine cars, including two for mail and service. It will be the first all-room car train in operation in this country, it is said. It will have two of the new type roomette cars, each car having eighteen roomettes for a total of thirty-six and the rest of the sleeping car equipment will include double bedrooms, drawing rooms, compartments, and master bedrooms.

The General will consist of twelve cars, the Liberty will consist of eight, and the Spirit of St. Louis will consist of ten.

All trains will be pulled by the powerful new streamlined steam locomotives of the Pennsylvania.

GOOD CHEER, LADIES! THE SUN IS ASSURED FOR EASTER PARADE

Weather Forecaster J. R. Lloyd crossed his fingers last night and said that unless all signs fail, Easter Sunday weather tomorrow should be fair, with temperatures in the lower sixties.

There is just a slight, slight chance for rain early tomorrow morning, he added, but whatever rain falls will be more of a hangover from the thundershowers predicted for today and tonight. Skies should clear in time for early churchgoers to wear their new Easter finery, Mr. Lloyd said.

Indications are that Easter clothes will be as colorful this year as the proverbial Easter egg. Flowered hats will be in evidence, and against the color trend will be the customary black and white contrast.

Easter egg hunts will be held in Sauganash, Avondale, Jackson, Marquette, and Armour Square parks today, and in Shabona, Portage, McKinley, and Columbus parks tomorrow.

BOY FINDS WORM WITH NEW ANGLE; IT HAS TWO TAILS

Donald Miller, who is an Elgin boy 15 years old, forgot all about fishing yesterday when he found Adelbert. He phoned Mrs. Barbara Lannerud, parks commissioner, to see if they didn't want Adelbert for the city zoo. But Mrs. Lannerud was forced to decline, albeit reluctantly, because the zoo had no provisions for such.

Last night Adelbert was reported squirming in the fear that the fishing excursion might be revived after all.

Adelbert is a 3 inch earthworm, equipped with two tails, both of which wriggle merrily as he progresses on his accustomed burrowings about, and which, since science isn't interested, should make a tasty morsel indeed for some voracious bluegill.

Crash! Pool of Red; Crowd; Alarm; Police; Aw, Shucks

More than 100 persons crowded around a small pool of red fluid on the Clark street side of the First National bank yesterday. Somebody said it was blood. Somebody else telephoned police that somebody had jumped from a window. When police arrived they found janitors mopping up the red spot. A boy had dropped and broken a bottle of red ink.

Pious Throngs Trace Christ's Path to Calvary

JERUSALEM, April 15.—(AP)—Thousands of pilgrims observing Good Friday today trod the Via Dolorosa where Christ's faltering footsteps led to Calvary. Along with Christians of all creeds, Moslems and Jews observed their springtime festivals in the Holy City. Heavy police escorts guarded against terrorism, but no incidents marred the ceremonies.

Christians began worship at 6:30 a. m. in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre with a mass of the presanctified and ended the day's mourning of the death of the Savior late tonight by chanting the "Crux Fidelis."

The pilgrims, accompanied by hundreds of tourists, kept up a continuous march along the Via Dolorosa throughout the day, pausing with bowed heads at the spots where Christ stopped to rest. Among the pilgrims were many Ethiopian refugees, including former Empress Mennen, who yesterday participated in the washing of the feet ceremony under a tent in the courtyard of the Holy Sepulchre.

Jews Observe Passover.

In a dramatic service tonight Syrians reënacted scenes from the passion, carrying a shrouded cross in a casket from Calvary to the Stone of Unction and then to a tomb in the Holy Sepulchre where it will remain sealed until Easter.

Jews observed the Feast of the Passover and members of the Greek Orthodox church celebrated the eve of the festival of St. Lazarus. The Greek Orthodox worshipers marched in procession to the Mount of Olives after attending vesper services.

Arab villagers around Jerusalem took their banners into the Mosque of Omar this morning with the customary ceremonial—band music and street dancing.

Pope Inspects Exhibit.

VATICAN CITY, April 15.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. today interrupted his Good Friday meditations to visit an exhibit of Catholic charitable work. The pontiff, saving his strength for the elaborate Easter mass and canonizations, had decided to spend the day in prayer in his apartments, but left for a few minutes to inspect the exhibit of the Italian Catholic Action in the Vatican.

Eighteen cardinals and many other church dignitaries attended a mass celebrated by Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state, in the Sistine Chapel.

Secret of Sex Determination Found at N. U.

Recent experiments that have revived and made more plausible the belief that boy babies may some day be produced at will were described last night before the Chicago Gynecological society by Dr. R. R. Greene of Northwestern university medical school.

Dr. Greene's experiments, performed with the aid of Drs. M. W. Burrill and A. C. Ivy, won for him the $500 Capps research prize offered by the Institute of Medicine of Chicago.

Sex control, a possibility that has intrigued medical science since ancient times, has actually been accomplished in the experiments by injecting male hormones into the blood stream of females of the smaller animals. Hormones are chemical substances carried by the blood. They can now be produced synthetically.

Tried On Smaller Animals.

The tests have shown that injections of hormones into the mother cannot only predetermine sex, but actually can change to males the offsprings that have started to develop as females, Dr. Greene declared. This is proved by the birth of intersexed animals. Despite certain female characteristics, however, this type animal reproduces as a male, Dr. Greene found.

Though the degree of maleness produced was found to be governed by the amount of hormone used and the time of the injection, with relation to the date of birth, all offspring were predominately male—super male—the doctor asserted. No females were born.

"It is significant, even startling, that hormones can be administered experimentally to produce a male animal," said Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern medical school. "Of course, any one would be foolhardy to attempt such a thing as this with humans until we know more."

Applicable to Human.

In this Dr. Greene agreed, but was willing to discuss theoretically the results of the experiments if perfected to apply to humans.

"It is known," he said, "that the human mother can produce the male hormone. In the experiments on lower animals it is shown that offspring that normally would have been female have been permanently masculinized. Therefore, the introduction of the male hormone into the human mother in the right amount and at the right time could be expected to produce maleness in the offspring."

Gynecologists who attended last night's meeting were profoundly interested in Dr. Greene's paper. Perfection of his experiments to apply to humans would undoubtedly have a great effect upon the world, they said. The power to produce males at will would be a tremendous weapon in the hands of a warlike nation, they suggested.

Others saw a more immediate and commercial significance in Dr. Greene's findings. It would be worth much to the breeder of beef cattle, for example, to make certain that his calves would be male, because the steer is the ideal beef animal.

CASH ACCOUNTS GONE; TELL OF AMAZING DEALS

War Rifles, Planes Figure in Story.

Investors who entrusted their savings to the La Salle street brokerage house of Hoagland & Allum, Inc., will lose $730,000, it was estimated last night by W. McNeil Kennedy, regional administrator for the federal Securities and Exchange commission.

Kennedy said a preliminary inventory of the concern's assets shows stocks and bonds for which the investors paid $675,000 are missing. Cash accounts of $55,000 are wiped out, he said, and only 20 shares are left of one stock in which the company should have 17,000 shares. The company has no more than $100 in the bank.

Kennedy and his staf took over the company offices at 14 South La Salle street yesterday, while the blue sky division of the state's attorney's office was investigating the operations which were halted Thursday when the investment company was raided and closed.

Continue Questioning Officers.

All day the state's attorney's men questioned the three officers of the brokerage house, who were formally charged with embezzlement and kept in custody when they failed to produce bonds of $200,000 each.

Hour by hour the brokers added to the bewildering details of their story that they tried to stave off bankruptcy by acting as agents in war materials—a story that was branded a myth by Eugene J. O'Connor, head of the blue sky or fraudulent securities division.

The brokers are George F. Allum of 415 Union street, Wheaton, president; Olaf Andrew Larsen of 1320 Central street, Evanston, vice president, and Henry Adolph Engel of 6939 Oglesby avenue, secretary and treasurer.

Allum supplied the details. The others said they knew little of the fabulous transactions in rifles, sulphur, and airplanes which Allum insisted are still pending, transactions which he says may yet save the investors' money.

Tells of Mysterious Agents.

Mysterious gentlemen who said they were representing the Chinese government through merchants, a grandson of the celebrated Italian hero, Garibaldi, and other men with fortunes to spend were the principals of Allum's story. Even a New York suit and coat merchant got into the story with a commission to sell 500,000 rifles.

But Allum said he had never seen most of them. He talked about them, he said, with the head of the company's New York office, William T. Horn. There were four amazing transactions, as Allum told it. From them he expected to realize for a few weeks' work a profit of $672,000 for his clients.

There were the rifles. A Mr. Levy, the New York suit and coat man, had them. A Mr. Duff, representing a Chinese syndicate, wished to buy them.

Place "Deal" with Brokers.

But Mr. Duff did not go to Mr. Levy, nor did Mr. Levy go to Mr. Duff. Instead Mr. Levy went to the New York office and asked the brokerage concern to handle the matter. It was arranged that Mr. Duff should buy 500,000 rifles at $16 each, with a splendid commission to Hoagland-Allum.

A British syndicate heard about it. The British syndicate—this is Allum's story as told by the authorities—offered $14.50 each for a million guns. Allum was pondering which contract he would rather have when his company was closed.

Then there were the airplanes. A Mr. Fred Westfried, whom Allum actually saw, wanted to buy them for delivery to Italy by a man Mr. Westfried said was Garibaldi's grandson. [O'Connor interrupted to say the grandson mentioned is now in South America and is in no way connected with Italian affairs.]

Mr. Westfried wanted to buy Bellanca airplanes, but he did not go to the Bellanca company. He went to the concern's New York office because he had heard that the company had once dealt in securities with the airplane company. Mr. Westfried was a Hungarian, living in London and Paris, who liked to visit in New York.

John Phillips, assistant state's attorney, asked Allum why Mr. Westfried

did not deal directly with the airplane company and save the fat commission of $150,000 he was promising the Hoagland & Allum company.

"I don't know," said Allum.

There was the sulphur. A French syndicate wanted to buy it from a company in Texas and came, like the others, to the Chicago security concern. The syndicate would pay the $405,000 for doing the buying, at the rate of $6,750 a month. Mr. Horn of the New York office had arranged that, too, according to Allum.

"Now, Mr. Allum," asked O'Connor, "isn't this just another mythical story after all? Don't you think Mr. Horn was just kidding you?"

"Well, if it is, it's news to me," said Allum. "I'm absolutely certain these were all legitimate deals."

Knew Firm Was Insolvent.

Allum said that Russell W. Brown, the vice president who was found dead of carbon monoxide gas poisoning in his garage the night before the crash, knew that day that the company was "against the wall," as Allum put it. "We all did," Allum said. But he denied that he suspected Brown had committed suicide.

Allum was so nervous that it took him twenty minutes to open the firm's vault in the Northern Trust company. Officials said he was the only one who knew the combination. The vault was opened by order of Peter B. Carey, former president of the Chicago Board of Trade, who was appointed receiver when the brokerage company was closed Thursday.

Allum explained when he finally got the door open:

"This is all defaulted stuff—just cats and dogs."

Questioned About Report.

Engle was questioned about the financial report he filed with the secretary of state a year ago, in which he placed the firm's net value at $40,000. "From what I know now," he admitted, "the value was wrong.

"But," he said, "the statement was made at the direction of Allum."

Light was thrown on Engel's earlier story, that he had wished to retire from the firm and had been persuaded by Allum to remain, in a letter found in the company records. Engel had written it to Allum last Feb. 16 when Allum was in New York. It read:

"As I dictate this letter to you I am experiencing many conflicting emotions. You will recall that many times during the last year I have expressed to you the desire to organize a securities business of my own, into which I hope to take my son after he finishes school. In view of the unsettled conditions in the last few years I have always felt it would be unfair to you and our other associates if I were to make this move during the period in which I think I was of some assistance to the organization here.

Decides to Quit Firm.

"Now that Dame Fortune has turned her frown into a broad smile [Allum had been telling his associates of the war material contracts], my action would be an injustice to no one but myself, since it looks very much like I am giving up an opportunity to share in tremendous profits; in any event that is the chance I must take to accomplish my purpose and at the same time feel I am acting fairly toward you and our associates.

"Therefore, please consider this my formal resignation. . . ."

Engel said Allum wrote him a letter pleading with him to remain for the war materials profits, and he remained.

All the officials insisted no one had profited by their alleged embezzlement, which they insisted was necessitated by business losses and their $80,000 a year overhead expense. Six of their recent large bond issues, they said, are in default.

Not Members of Exchanges.

Neither the firm nor any of its officers was a member of any securities exchange; so the firm was not subject to regulations of the exchanges.

Investigators said they wished to question the bookkeeper, Harold Railey of 725 Sheridan road. He was missing from his home.

The name of Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion, was brought into the case by the Illinois securities commission. The company was registered as Hoaglund, Allum & Tunney on July 1, 1933, the commission disclosed, and continued under that name about 18 months. Tunney is in no way connected with its present affairs, the commission said.

All efforts of the authorities to reach Horn in New York to question him about the transactions related by Allum failed.

Allum, central figure in the investigation, is the son of Dr. Charles E. Allum, who was celebrated in Europe and America as an organist, choir master, and composer of religious music, and who died in 1917. Dr. Allum was given the degree of doctor of music in 1887 by Trinity college, Dublin, at the same convention in which honorary degrees were conferred upon King George V., then duke of York, and a brother, the duke of Clarence.

Organist at St. Chrysostoms.

Dr. and Mrs. Allum, who died in 1936, came to America in 1901 from Scotland. Dr. Allum became organist and choirmaster at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church here.

While at St. Chrysostom's he composed the widely sung Allum Eucharist, for many years part of the Easter program of the church. Dr. Allum drew the specifications for the famed pipe organ at St. Chrysostom's, given as a memorial to her husband by Mrs. Nicholas Senn.

Allum, the broker, lives in a pretentious residence in Wheaton which he recently offered for sale at $65,000. He lives opposite the home of his sisters, the Misses Greta and Annette Allum. Miss Greta is a music teacher.

A brother, James Allum, Chicago insurance man, lives in Glen Ellyn. He called at the state's attorney's office yesterday to cheer up Allum.

One Victim's Experience.

All day investors who had heard of the wreck streamed into its offices to see Kennedy or to the state's attorney's headquarters. Some telephoned.

One was Mrs. Amelia Willumsen, 62 years old, of 7628 Luella avenue. She said she had been dealing with the company for many of its nineteen years in business. Two years ago, she said, she invested $15,000 in an annuity scheme that was to pay her $7 a week for life.

When Allum told her recently that $2,500 more was needed to bolster her account, she mortgaged her home and gave it to him, she said. Told that her money was probably all lost, she replied:

"I can't understand it. They were so nice to me."

GROCER STABBED OVER BOGUS BILL.

Edward Bernacki, 41 years old, was stabbed last night in his grocery at 2448 North Laramie avenue by a young man who had attempted to pass a counterfeit $10 bill. The wound was not serious.

U. S. Easy Money Totals 17 Billion

Washington, D. C., April 15.—(AP)—Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley today told the senate federal expenditures totaling $17,000,000,000 had been made in the states from March 4, 1933, to Dec. 31, 1937. He also cited loans, totaling $13,331,316,903, and insured loans through the Federal Housing administration totaling $1,496,714,259. His figures follow on some of the states:

WPA OFFICIALS ALLOW WORKERS TO BE WITNESSES

Omaha, Neb., April 15.—[Special.]—After communicating with Washington headquarters, WPA authorities decided today they had gone too far in ordering WPA workers not to testify before a grand jury investigating Douglas county government extravagance.

United States District Attorney Votava announced, following a conference with D. F. McCauley, district chief of the WPA here, that workers and administrative officials subpenaed by the grand jury will be permitted to testify. Votava said: "The Omaha branch of the WPA has no secrets."

WPA workers had been instructed not to testify in accordance with a general order issued by Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator in Washington. Withdrawal from this position followed severe criticism of the order by James Fitzgerald, presiding District court judge.

Four Chicagoans Named Officers in Army Reserve

Four Chicagoans are among 12 Illinois residents named in Washington yesterday as officers in the army reserve corps. They are Irvin Frank Eder, 1600 East 68th street, chemical warfare reserves; Nichols Peter Giovan, 6831 Jeffery avenue, infantry; George Richard Koons, 5555 Woodlawn avenue, field artillery, and John Thomas Llewellyn II., 1225 West 120th street, infantry. All were given the rank of second lieutenant.

NEW ROOSEVELT IDEAS THREATEN CONGRESS TIEUP

Trust Laws and Erasing Tax Exemption Next.

resolution calling for such taxation. His resolution was defeated.

Congressional leaders predicted that Mr. Roosevelt may meet with another defeat if he presses for such legislation at the present session of congress. Victory is possible, it was conceded, but cannot be won except through a protracted fight which would carry congress far beyond May adjournment plans.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill estimated that if all federal, state, and local government securities and local government salaries were taxable, the federal revenue would be increased by 155 million dollars a year. He estimated a return of 70 million dollars on federal securities, 70 millions on state and local securities, and 15 millions from income taxes on local government salaries.

Trust Message Soon.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would send a message to congress on monopolistic practices very soon. He would not say whether the message would ask for legislation at the present session of congress. Mr. Roosevelt has been working on the strengthening of anti-monopoly laws since his Florida fishing cruise last December.

In the house administration leaders moved for immediate consideration of the Roosevelt pump priming plan. Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] announced his subcommittee on deficiency appropriations of the house appropriations committee would begin hearings on the recovery plan next week.

He predicted the measure will be readily passed, although it may encounter perfunctory opposition from the anti-spending bloc. Most leaders agreed with Woodrum that there will be little disposition to dam a flow of federal easy money in a campaign year.

Spending Chiefs to Be Heard.

Woodrum said that the draft of a bill will be ready for consideration of his subcommittee to enable it to hold hearings. He said that probable witnesses next week will be WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, Secretary of the Interior Harry L. Ickes, Farm Security Administrator Will W. Alexander, and other heads of spending units. A large number of congressmen have asked to be heard, he said.

Woodrum said that he expected easy passage of the bill for the further reason that it distributed spending among the various government groups. It will satisfy the Hopkins made work faction and the Ickes public works group, he said.

As congressional leaders attacked the huge program, it was generally believed that most of the vast spending plan would be incorporated in one bulky bill. A few items will be gleaned out and incorporated in other bills, but the bulk of the fund will be intact, it was said.

The President's suggestion of adding 300 million dollars for housing will go to pending appropriations to carry on the Wagner-Steagall housing act. His suggestion for 37 millions for flood control and relief will go to the nonmilitary war department appropriations bill pending in the house. The 100 million suggested for federal aid highways will go to the agriculture department appropriation bill pending in the house.

Vote 50 Millions for CCC.

The senate today voted an almost unnoticed pump priming appropriation. It approved appropriation of 50 million dollars to carry the CCC through July 1, 1939, in addition to 300 millions previously voted.

Another almost unnoticed sidelight of the pump priming program was contained in a treasury invitation for proposals to supply paper for printing currency and public debt securities during the coming fiscal year. The treasury asked bids on 1,306 tons of paper.

The 1,306 tons of paper would print 1,206,000,000 dollar bills, almost the full amount allowed by the inflationary desterilization of the 1 billion 391 million dollar inactive gold fund.

Reserve Board Statement.

The Federal Reserve board announced its reduction of reserve requirements in the following brief statement:

"As a part of the government's program for encouragement of business recovery, the board of govenors has reduced requirements on all classes of deposits for all member banks, effective at the opening of business on April 16, 1938. By this action excess reserves of member banks will be increased by about $750,000,000.

Classes of member banks and of deposits:	Percentage prior to April 16.	Percentage beginning April 16.
Demand deposits:
Central reserve city banks	26	22½
Reserve city banks	20	17½
Country banks	14	12
Time deposits:
All classes of member banks	6	5

Reach Unprecedented Total.

With excess reserves today at $1,700,000,000, they will reach the staggering and unprecedented total of approximately $3,800,000,000 when the reserve board action is effective. This amount of excess reserves theoretically would permit a credit expansion totaling approximately $30,000,000,000, or about $20,000,000,000 more than was possible today.

Never before has such a gigantic reservoir of credit been made available to a nation at one time. The highest level to which excess reserves heretofore have risen was $3,300,000,000 in the summer of 1936, about the time the reserve board authorities first reduced the statutory deposit reserve by 50 per cent. The $1,700,000,000 of excess reserves was larger than at any time in the reserve system's history prior to the advent of the New Deal.

The effectiveness of excess reserves totaling $3,800,000,000 or more, though theoretically staggering to the imagination, according to experts, actually depends on the availability of borrowers and the willingness of banks to lend money.

REFUSE MILEAGE PAY WHEN CONGRESSMEN REMAIN IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 15.—(AP)—The senate appropriations committee went on record today against paying the 20 cents a mile travel expenses for members of congress who do not go back to their home districts between sessions. The committee approved a $444,000 appropriation for members' mileage allowance, but inserted a provision that no part of the fund be paid to members who did not make the trip home between the close of the special session late last December and the opening of the regular session Jan. 3.

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday ordered the Chicago Surface Lines to install feeder bus service in Halsted street between 87th and 123d streets. The new line connects with the Halsted line at 87th street.

The city council already has approved the extension and the street car company is expected to seek court approval for purchase of new buses for the line so that service can be inaugurated by June 1.

Merrill B. Knox, commission transit engineer, said eight buses would be required to maintain a schedule of five minutes in the rush hours and eight minutes during the off hours.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

3 BIGGER SHIPS ADDED TO FLEET BY SENATE BILL

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—Authorizing the construction of three 45,000 ton super-battleships at an estimated cost of 100 million dollars each, the Roosevelt administration's 1 billion 156 million dollar big navy bill was ordered reported by the senate naval affairs committee today.

The measure authorizes an increase of 20 per cent in all categories of naval vessels and naval aircraft beyond the limits of existing law and the defunct Washington and London treaties. It is intended to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio of the treaties for the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, respectively.

Accepts Navy Recommendations.

The naval affairs committee accepted the recommendation of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, that the construction of 45,000 ton super-battleships be authorized. The bill passed by the house authorized three additional battleships of 35,000 tons each, but the navy wanted authority to build larger floating fortresses because Japan is supposed to be building larger ones.

The committee also increased the authorized tonnage of the two proposed additional aircraft carriers from 15,000 to 20,000 each. The navy has definitly determined to build 20,000 ton carriers.

The committee estimates that the increase in the authorized size of the battleships will increase their cost by twenty million dollars each and that the increased tonnage of the aircraft carriers will cost ten million dollars each, making a total increase for the three battleships and two carriers of eighty million dollars.

The committee, however, effected a saving of thirty million dollars in the authorization for naval auxiliaries and fifteen million dollars by striking out an authorization for contractual obligations to experiment with new types of vessels and materials. Thus the net increase over the house bill was thirty-five million dollars.

Other Authorizations.

The senate bill authorizes 26 naval auxiliaries, an increase of 4 over the house bill, but they contain fewer in the larger categories and would cost $30,000,000 less than the authorization of $246,451,000 contained in the house bill.

The bill authorizes 4 oil tankers, 1 mine layer, 3 mine sweepers, 2 fleet tugs, 3 destroyer tenders, 2 submarine tenders, 3 large seaplane tenders, 7 small seaplane tenders, and 1 repair ship.

The house bill authorized the appropriation of fifteen million dollars for the construction of experimental coast patrol vessels, up to 3,000 tons each, and a three million dollar dirigible of the Los Angeles type. The committee struck out the authorization for the dirigible, not being convinced that the navy should experiment further with lighter-than-air craft, and left the fifteen million dollars in the bill for experimental surface craft.

Besides the three additional capital ships and two aircraft carriers, the bill authorizes 9 additional cruisers, 23 destroyers, 9 submarines, and 950 naval airplanes.

The naval expansion measure faces strong opposition in the senate, but the opposition has little hope of defeating it. Many senators who ordinarily support a strong navy program are suspicious of the administration's foreign policy and the purposes for which such a tremendous naval expansion is desired.

GEN. TRUESDELL TAKES COMMAND AT FT. SHERIDAN

Hold Formal Ceremony at Camp Today.

Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell will take formal command of Fort Sheridan and the 12th infantry brigade today in ceremonies at the fort. He arrived from New York yesterday to replace Brig. Gen. Philip B. Peyton, who is on his way to duty in Honolulu.

Gen. Truesdell is of the old army school that likes to roll its own. He was born in Minnesota in 1882 and his closely cropped hair is silver grey. His military bearing was apparent yesterday, even while he sat at ease in an armchair in his adjutant's office and answered questions about himself.

He enlisted as a private in the United States army at Washington, D. C., in 1901. He considers April 1 a lucky day for him because he was made a corporal on April 1, 1902, and received his commission as a brigadier general on April 1, 1938.

Serves on Mexican Border.

Gen. Truesdell said he spent his time during the Mexican border trouble stringing telephone lines along the border. After the United States entered the world war he was assigned to the 33d division at Camp Logan, Tex., but was transferred later to the 1st division. He landed in Bordeaux, France, on April 6, a major.

During the war he advanced from the rank of major to that of colonel while serving as signal officer of the 1st division and the 5th corps.

He received the distinguished service medal with two citations, the Croix de Guerre, and six battle clasps for his service in France.

Former Commander at Fort Jay.

After the war he served seven years at the Leavenworth, Kas., army post as an instructor and student, five years with the general staf, a short period at the Naval War college, three years as executive officer of the 15th infantry brigade, two years at the Army War college, and nine months as commander of the 16th infantry brigade at Fort Jay, Governor's Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Truesdell is now visiting a daughter who is the wife of an army officer stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. A son, Karl Jr., who is a graduate of the military academy at West Point, N. Y., is an officer stationed at Mitchell Field, N. Y. The general's brother, Stephen Riggs Truesdell, lives in Evanston.

Gen. Truesdell said that he was happy to be stationed at Fort Sheridan and that he hopes to renew many old friendships in this area. He said he was particularly anxious to see Nicholas McDonald, a one armed photographer who served with the general in France.

TWINS JUST ALIKE DESPITE SPECIAL TRAINING FOR ONE

New York, April 15.—[Special.]—The Woods twins, who will be 6 years old Monday, show little difference today, though Johnny was scientifically conditioned, while they just let Jimmy grow. Johnny's special training for the first two years of his life in the child development clinic of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical center has made him the stockier, though he was the smaller at birth, but most observers agree that Jimmy is brighter. At the Washington Heights day nursery school Jimmy is regarded more alert mentally.

Interviewed as they sat in an ice cream parlor today, Jimmy was asked about reports he bossed his conditioned brother. While Jimmy was replying that both were boss, Johnny was putting sugar in Jimmy's water. Jimmy retaliated by jabbing a spoon in his brother's ice cream. Johnny promptly dumped pepper in Jimmy's ice cream. Jimmy diverted his twin's attention and ate Johnny's ice cream.

Ferre Watkins Awarded D. S. C. for 1918 Heroism

The war department announced in Washington yesterday that a distinguished service cross has been awarded to Ferre C. Watkins, Chicago attorney, for extraordinary heroism during the Meuse-Argonne offensive in 1918. The citation stated that Watkins, a lieutenant of infantry, led a night patrol and got information vital to the advance of the 89th division. Watkins, whose office is at 69 West Washington street, served in the 356th infantry.

A $30,000,000 PARK IS EASTER GIFT TO CHICAGO

600 Acres of Land Made on Lake Shore.

cost—30 million dollars—of this transformation you must take account of the fact that a large proportion of your tax money has gone underground. It has gone into sewers, water mains, and electric light and telephone conduits. Above ground your money has gone into such costly construction as bridges, viaducts, and enormous concrete and steel retaining walls which hold up the narrow strips of soil wherein are planted the trees that are to screen off the railroad yards on the west.

Building a beautiful park on top of what was a city dump is no mere matter of grading and seed planting. It is a feat of engineering as well as of landscape gardening. Mine an area five miles long, from 12th street to 55th street, and 700 feet wide—which is Burnham park—with such permanencies as sewers, mains, and conduits, and you are building as if you were founding a big town. It runs into money. Kindly nature does not do the work for you down below. She will be kind to your trees, but you must attend to the sanitation and the facilities required in a park frequented by millions of people. Louis XIV. learned that long ago.

Work Directed by Experts.

You as taxpayer may further console yourself with the fact that the Burnham transformation would have cost a mighty sight more if the work had been done by political ignoramuses. All but one of the men in immediate direction of it were trained by universities for their careers. Thus:

General Superintendent Donoghue, University of Illinois; twenty-five years of experience in park construction and management; his business is parks, not politics.

Chief engineer, Ralph H. Burke, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

W. J. Bell, assistant superintendent. Mr. Bell came up from the ranks and is highly valued for his practical knowledge.

Dunham Is Hard Worker.

As president of the park district, Robert J. Dunham, Harvard university, is no figurehead, but a daily counselor. He receives no salary, "but," says Mr. Donoghue, "is at his desk or in the field every working day from 9:30 to 5 o'clock."

"Have any women shared in the burdens of this gigantic piece of construction?" I asked Mr. Donoghue.

"Yes," said he, "Miss May E. McAdams has contributed some charming landscape designs, notably around the new shelter at 56th street."

The exacting and sometimes discouraging nature of the task which that group has now carried nearly to completion is readily indicated by a few statistics.

In 1920 what is now Burnham park was all open water. From the southern edge of Grant park on south for forty-four blocks to 56th street—the northern boundary of Jackson park — all of Burnham is made land, built by hydraulic fills, sand fills, and dumpings. During the eighteen years since Burnham was open water the Century of Progress, which covered about half of the area, took five years away from the park engineers and landscapers, and hence substantially delayed their work. The exposition area was taken away from them in 1931, and they did not get it back until 1935, and when they got it back, not only the area of the vanished exposition, but the whole Burnham area of 600 acres was a mess.

Cost Runs $50,000 an Acre.

The engineers and artists have worked on a basis of $50,000 per acre for the creation of the land, which was not finished until 1932, for the underground work, and for the beautification above ground. Hence your bill of 30 million dollars.

The work has gone forward without ballyhoo. The slogan has been, "Bring the people to the waves and to sandy beaches."

There are now sandy Burnham bathing beaches at 12th, 31st, and 49th streets. Park builders call these "organized beaches," meaning that they are manned by life guards.

In a few years many more will be created by the building under Mr. Burke's direction of wing walls. They will be 600 feet apart and will extend 450 feet into the lake. Automatically, by the action of wind and waves, they will create sandy beaches.

Many Recreation Centers.

Burnham's recreation centers for the public will ultimately include twenty-three soft ball diamonds, ten tennis courts, one football field, one soccer field, one cricket field, two hocky fields, and two playgrounds for children. All these are under construction.

Such recreation areas are called in the parlance of park builders "centers of use." At Burnham the parking spaces near the "centers of use" will accommodate 15,000 cars.

At 47th street the street cars will deliver passengers at a point 250 feet inside the park proper, as will the street cars on the 12th and 23d street lines.

During the nearly four years of arduous and costly work on Burnham park the staf of the park district has brought to completion lesser projects of significance.

Away out at 83d street and Dorchester avenue it has built twenty-eight acres of park and playing fields on what two years ago was a cattail swamp through which you could not wade in hip boots. It has been named Avalon park. It is pure salvage.

From 95th and 102d streets, again proving what can be done in the way of salvage, ninety-three acres of addition to Calumet park have been built on top of slag from the steel mills.

Beautify Approach to Museum.

Best of all for those who appreciate one of the world's supreme specimens of Ionic architecture, the southern approach to the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park has been made worthy of the vast and beautiful building. Less than a year ago that approach was like Burnham, a mess. The lagoon and its banks, which the structure overlooks, were a weedy morass, agreeable to neither eyes nor nose, and there was no terrace to carry the superb lines of the museum down to the water's edge.

Now the lagoon is clear of weeds and rubbish and a massive terrace of Bedford stone bordering the water completes the harmony of the Ionic façade. The result is a picture of entrancing serenity and power rising from and reflected in the shining lagoon. The result would have satisfied even the ill-fated Charles B. Atwood, whose Fine Arts building—now permanently reconstructed as an industrial museum—was the supreme architectural glory of the World's Fair of 1893.

GRADE CROSSING DISPUTE DELAYS AIRPORT PROJECT

Railroad Asks Pledge of No Responsibility.

A dispute between city officials and representatives of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad over future responsibility for construction of grade crossings at and near Chicago airport has delayed passage of the airport ordinance by the city council and consequently the entire flying field enlargement program, it was learned yesterday. The ordinance, scheduled for passage on Thursday, was tabled by the council that day.

"We'll not shelve the ordinance again," said Mayor Kelly yesterday. "The council is prepared to pass the ordinance at the next meeting, April 25. Then we'll see who's responsible for delaying the project."

Road Asks Definite Promise.

The mayor said attorneys for the C. & W. I. are demanding that the new ordinance contain a definite statement absolving their client from participation in the financing of grade crossings near the flying field at any future date. The railroad, in accordance with the terms of the ordinance, will move its tracks from its right of way bisecting the available airport area, to a new site north of the field.

Under an agreement worked out with the city six months ago the railroad is to trade its title to the present right of way for the new strip of land which will be purchased and turned over by the city. The city also will pay all costs of track removal, and in addition is to set up a fund to capitalize the annual increase in cost of operating over the new right of way which will be slightly longer than the old.

Aldermen on the special airport committee which drew the ordinance with the active participation of the railroad's lawyers, say the C. & W. I. is seeking to use its position to escape its legal responsibility. Ald. Roger Kiley, a spokesman for the committee, however, said this phase of the ordinance would be settled amicably.

Anxious for Law's Passage.

Attorney J. R. Barse, general counsel for the railroad, said he was as anxious as any city official to get the ordinance passed and the track removal started. He said the railroad wants, nevertheless, to be sure the city will not in the future force it to assume a share of the cost of building grade crossings over Cicero or Central avenues—the east and west boundaries of the airport.

He said that the removal of the tracks from the airport tract to a new position along the line of 54th street was being done at the city's request. The new location was chosen by the city and therefore the railroad should be freed from any share in expenses of building future grade separations.

"We can do nothing about removing the tracks anyway," he explained, "until we hear from the Bankers' Trust company of New York which is trustee for our mortgage bonds. The trustee now is studying the ordinance as published ten days ago. It's a voluminous instrument and we don't expect to have any communication from the trustee for some time yet. Our position will be determined by the action of the trustee."

Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works for the city, yesterday made public a report on progress of work on the north half of the airport tract which is bounded by 55th and 63d streets, Cicero and Central avenues. The south half of the field is improved and in constant use, but the northern half is being prepared for the ultimate expansion by 4,500 WPA workers.

Virtually all the drainage of the south half is completed, Hewitt said. Nine miles of tile varying from 9 to 27 inches in diameter has been laid. Sixty-one per cent of the excavating for the runways has been done, a total of 53,275 out of 86,057 yards having been dug out.

The runways, with a total of 250,000 square yards, must yet be filled with 77,496 cubic yards of crushed stone as a sub-base, and then covered with 30,000 cubic yards of cinders. Between the runways 516,666 square yards must be graded and sodded.

Historical Tour

(Story in adjoining column.)

A suggested Illinois motor tour which includes a visit to Indian mounds and to two places where Abraham Lincoln lived.

Dr. Townsend, on Way East to Serve Jail Term, in City

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old age pension advocate, arrived in Chicago last night on his way to Washington, D. C., where he must serve a jail term of 30 days for contempt of a house committee. He came from the west coast aboard a TWA plane. He was in jovial spirits as he talked with reporters and friends who welcomed him at Chicago airport. Dr. Townsend spent the night in Chicago. The Supreme court last Monday denied his petition for a review of the contempt sentence.

TELLS OF POINTS OF INTEREST ON TRIP DOWNSTATE

Easy Week-End Tour for Chicago Motorists.

Mr. and Mrs. Motorist: We suggest you clip these highway travel stories as a guide to tours this season. See automobile section of tomorrow's Tribune for a one day trip suggestion.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 15.—[Special.]—This is a turning point in the longer of two tours traveled by the Tribune's automobile in scouting week-end recreational drives for Chicago motorists. From here there's a fast return route on U. S. 66, approximately 190 miles across prairie where farmers are sowing oats and plowing in preparation for corn.

From Peoria, where yesterday's dispatch was filed, we continued south in U. S. 24 along the swollen Illinois river. Approaching Lewistown, we turned from the pavement where a sign pointed to the Dickson mounds.

Described by University.

These mounds are archæological explorations that have been studied by leading universities of America and Europe. Last year the University of Chicago press published a book on the Indian graves thereabouts.

Don Dickson, for a fee of 40 cents a person, invites tourists to view 230 exposed or partly exposed skeletons in the positions in which they were uncovered. His lecture is a dignified explanation of the scientific information obtained in these excavations of graves 500 to 1,200 years old.

Continuing south, we crossed Spoon river, locale of Edgar Lee Masters' anthology. On Illinois 100, from near the Havana bridge to Beardstown, we were in the duck hunters' section of the Illinois valley.

Visits New Salem Park.

Traveling toward Springfield on Illinois 125, we detoured north to New Salem State park, the reconstructed home town of Abraham Lincoln on a bluff overlooking the Sangamon river valley. It was there the rail splitter lived from 1831 to 1837, studying law, clerking in a store, wooing and losing Ann Rutledge, enlisting in the Blackhawk war, and winning two elections to the state legislature.

In impressive simulation of conditions a century ago are the Rutledge tavern, the Berry-Lincoln store, the Onstot cooperate and other buildings.

In Springfield here, there is more Lincoln lore. His homestead here, the only house he ever owned, is maintained as a state memorial. It's a two story white frame house with green shutters. Inside are some of the original furnishings with other furniture of the same period.

Also here is Lincoln's tomb, a monument in Oak Ridge cemetery. In respect for the great statesman and humanitarian the tomb attracts many distinguished visitors, including some from Europe.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

THREE INJURED AS TAXI CRASHES INTO STREET CAR

Three persons were injured and thirty others jolted last night when a taxicab crashed head on into a street car in front of 3321 Broadway. The injured were Mrs. Mary Ashton, 45 years old, 3604 Pine Grove avenue, passenger in the cab; Mrs. Antoinette Vent, 58, of 2259 Rosemont avenue, who was riding in the street car, and David Coombs, 41, of 4073 Kenmore avenue, the cab driver.

The accident occurred, police said, when Coombs swung the cab to the left of another automobile. Coombs said he skidded on the wet pavement.

James Mahon, 26 years old, 3010 Enoch avenue, Zion, was killed early today when his automobile left a curve in Sheridan road at the south limits of Winthrop Harbor and struck a culvert. Police said that Mahon probably fell asleep at the wheel.

Policemen William Gillespie and Thomas Gibbons of the East Chicago avenue station and a patient they were taking in a patrol to the County hospital were injured early today when the patrol was struck by a truck at Harrison and Jefferson streets and both overturned. The truck is listed to Gasswein Brothers, Inc., 732 North Morgan street, cosmetics supplies. The driver fled. The patient was George Brundza, 60 years old, 160 West Huron street. He and Gibbons were taken to the County hospital, where Gibbons received first aid. Gillespie was taken to St. Anthony's hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 245 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 198 were killed in Chicago, where 4,738 were injured in the same period.

Tipsy Driver Misses Trial; In Jail for Tipsy Driving

"Where," asked Police Magistrate Clarence Brown in Waukegan last night, "is Carl Fossberg?" Fossberg, a truck driver living at 620 South Genesee street, Waukegan, wasn't to be seen. He should have been present to answer a charge of drunken driving as the result of his arrest Wednesday. Just when Magistrate Brown was about to order the missing defendant's arrest, Police Chief William Blaylock appeared. Fossberg, he explained, was in jail. He had been arrested a few hours earlier for drunken driving.

WOMAN DRIVER LOSES CAR AND GOES ON WAGON

Judge J. M. Braude in Safety court yesterday told Mrs. Dorothy Rose that she could either stop drinking and driving for six months or go to jail for reckless driving. She decided to stay out of jail. Mrs. Rose, who is 22 years old and lives at 1716 Warren boulevard, was arrested early yesterday after she drove through a stop light at Halsted street and Roosevelt road, nearly colliding with a squad car.

Her companion, Oscar McBroom, 4209 Emerald avenue, owner of the car, was fined $25 on a disorderly conduct charge.

Hyman Bachner, 422 Grenshaw street, $50 fine, reckless driving.

Bernard Sharp, 7020 North Wolcott avenue, six months' probation, driving while intoxicated.

All drivers received driving suspensions for varying periods in addition to fines or sentences.

Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Boys' court ordered the arrest of John Dickinson, 8307 Maryland avenue, who failed to appear on a reckless driving charge. Dickinson figured in an automobile collision last Jan. 26.

DIES IN 2 FLOOR PLUNGE.

Harry Timberman, 38 years old, of Los Angeles, a paint contractor, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell or jumped from the second floor porch at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Walter P. Nelson, 2013 Farragut avenue, whom he was visiting.

Complains About Razor to Barber; Shot 5 Times

New York, April 15.—[Special.]—Eugene Sanfratello, owner of a barber shop in Queens, was held tonight on charges of firing five bullets into a customer who grumbled, he explained, over a scratchy razor. His victim is Charles Harvey, a WPA worker, who is in a critical condition. Sanfratello was rescued from a group of spectators who disarmed and beat him after the shooting.

Tomorrow, about noontime . . . when Easter promenading's over, and the family's wandering aimlessly about the house . . . and dinner's two hours off . . . bring out the box of Mrs. Snyder's and watch them rest and eat and smile and sigh and eat, in deepest satisfaction. FRANCO TROOPS TAKE SEAPORT; CUT SPAIN IN TWO Barcelona-Madrid Road Severed by Fascists.

BULLETIN.

MADRID, April 15.—(AP)—Gen. Jose Miaja, commander of the loyalist forces in Madrid, tonight announced that President Juan Negrin had given him full powers to take over control of government territory separated from Catalonia by the rebels.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish frontier], April 15.—(AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel armies split loyalist Spain in two today.

They drove a wedge to the Mediterranean sea at Vinaroz, just south of the Catalonian border, and then spread out to occupy 22 miles of coastline.

Catalonia, Spain's northeastern corner, was cut off from the rest of loyalist Spain and the first grand objective of Franco's eastern campaign was realized a little more than a month after it got under way on March 9.

Next Objective Is Capital.

It was the first great accomplishment for the Fascist forces since Franco captured Bilbao and Santander last summer and then proceeded to clear out all other resistance on Spain's northern coast.

His next major objectives—the rebels have referred to them as the "dominoes we will topple"—were Barcelona, Catalonian seaport and government capital, Valencia and Madrid.

In a single day's action, veteran Spanish and Italian troops under Gen. Miguel Aranda and Gen. Garcia Valino blasted their way into Vinaroz, then swiftly consolidated their coastal foothold by seizing Benicarlo, on the south, and Uldecona and Alcanar, to the north.

All Land Communications Cut.

For nearly two weeks the rebels had had the coastal road linking Catalonia with government territory to the south under artillery fire.

All land communications — telephone, telegraph, highways, and railroad—between Barcelona, 108 miles to the northwest, and the greater part of the Barcelona government's territory, including Madrid and Valencia, was severed.

Where yesterday there was one united government Spain, now there were two areas, connected only by radio, ship, and airplane.

Even this latter communication was precarious because of the rebel fleet in the Mediterranean and the rebel air force patroling the coast.

Attack "Spanish Gibraltar."

Late in the afternoon a rebel column from Benicarlo reached the "Spanish Gibraltar," Peniscola, nine miles south of Vinaroz. A massive château, Peniscola has been the scene of battle throughout Spain's history. It fell before French troops in 1811 only after an eleven day siege.

The "Gibraltar" is built on an isolated rock, 220 feet high and connected with the mainland only at low tide. The château and village, with a normal population of 3,500, was swollen with refugees and fleeing loyalist militiamen.

Forces under Aranda and Garcia Valino sent word they had captured huge quantities of war materials and supplies the government had shipped to Vinaroz in preparation for a long siege. The rebels seized many fishing smacks in which government troops had attempted to flee.

Loyalist dispatches said their forces put up a desperate stand before Vinaroz in the morning, but were crushed under the superior strength of the rebel attack.

Once Vinaroz was taken, government resistance in the entire area crumbled and only isolated snipers and small groups of desperate militiamen hampered the rebel drive to the south.

Twenty-five miles north of Vinaroz government defenders of Tortosa, strategic city near the delta of the Ebro river, prepared to fight on Catalonia's southern border just to the south of the city's walls. Another rebel column was advancing on Tortosa, down the Ebro from Cherta.

Strong government resistance on the highlands east of Lerida appeared to have stopped the rebel drive in the huge central sector of the front, some 70 to 80 miles west of Barcelona.

UNION DEMANDS LABEL ON COFFIN OR NO FUNERAL

New York, April 15.—[Special.]—The threat has gone forth that after May 1 non-union coffins will not be carried to the grave. Pickets marched today outside the Universal funeral chapel on Lexington avenue, bearing the announcement: "Please do not patronize this establishment. Caskets sold here are made by non-union labor—unfair to Casket Makers union, local 1718."

The announcement of the systematic ban on nonunion coffins was made in a letter to all funeral directors in the city signed by E. J. Cohan, secretary-treasurer of the Funeral Casket and Ambulance Chauffeurs union, local 643, A. F. of L. It was stated that on May 1, 1938, funeral chauffeurs will refuse to transport any caskets which are not entitled to a union label.

The reason given for the advance picketing of the Lexington avenue chapel is that the firm with which it is associated supplies only coffins made by non-union labor.

Boy Robbed of Bike and Pay by 2 Other Cyclists

Three boys on as many bicycles met early today at Oakdale avenue and Burling street with the result that one of the boys, Frank Jones, 14 years old, 1104 George street, was robbed of $4.50, his first week's pay, and $1.30 and his bicycle in addition. Jones had received the pay as a delivery boy for a drug store. He went to a movie and while on his way home on his bicycle two older boys stopped and strongarmed him, took his money and his bicycle.

130,000 FRENCH STRIKERS AGREE TO PEACE TALKS

Will Meet Employers to Discuss Bargaining.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 15.—Premier Daladier, wielding the dictatorial powers voted to him by parliament, today achieved a step toward ending the wave of strikes in France.

The executive committee of the metal workers' union agreed to open negotiations for the return of 130,000 strikers to their jobs by next Tuesday on the basis of the ultimatum issued last night by Daladier.

The dictator's ultimatum warned the strikers that unless they returned to work the government would use its authority "for the common good."

Representatives of the employers and workers will meet tomorrow to discuss the problem of collective contracts.

Daladier scored a victory in his anti-strike drive when workers in the aviation industry signed a collective bargaining contract with their employers. The contract was negotiated under the supervision of Pierre Jacomet, permanent undersecretary of the defense ministry, whom Daladier had named as arbiter.

The strike of metal workers, who tonight still held more than 100 factories which they had occupied, remained the chief obstacle facing Daladier in his plan to present a united nation to the dictators of Europe in his forthcoming negotiations with them.

Seeks European Settlement.

The French premier, once he has settled France's internal difficulties, plans to enter into negotiations with Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini in an effort to settle the general European situation. Daladier plans to coöperate with Great Britain in his negotiations with the dictators.

France, in exchange for recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, wants Premier Mussolini, among other things, to give guarantees that he will not attempt to seize Syria and that he will stop fomenting unrest in Tunisia, Algeria, and Morocco. France also wants a settlement of the status of the French owned railroad from Djibouti, French Somaliland, to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

GERMAN FRIENDSHIP IS GUIDING PRINCIPLE OF DUCE, WRITER SAYS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

ROME, April 15.—On the eve of the signing of the Anglo-Italian friendship agreement tomorrow, Virginio Gayda, foreign ministry mouthpiece, said today in the newspaper Giornale D'Italia that the Rome-Berlin axis is and continues to be the fundamental guiding principle of Italian foreign policy.

Rome, he said, henceforth, will be bound to both Berlin and London and the Italian government is determined that Italy's friendship with Germany shall exist harmoniously alongside its friendship with Britain. Gayda said this view was shared by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

BEAUTY—DEPRESSION PROOF

By CALEB

FROM 1930 to 1934 at least one type of business prospered. The people who made cosmetics and beauty preparations, who made equipment to apply them, or who sold and applied them, found brisk demand for their wares.

Beauty culture in ancient Athens followed the same course. When famines, wars, and plagues came, feminine beauty still flourished, was wooed and won over every obstacle. Long ago an English queen spent the last hours of her life rearranging her accustomed headdress so that the headsman's axe would not muss her coiffure.

The quest for beauty is among womankind's deepest instincts. It is an even chance that the wife who long ago watched her lord sketch rude drawings on cave walls, seized the opportunity when his back was turned to smear her cheeks and lips with the iron oxide of his primitive paints.

And for that, John Caveman thought the more of her—and his descendants do today. By way of appreciation the lesser male has turned his genius to the preparation of materials and devices that enhance and bestow the beauty women crave.

And what an eminently more pleasant world it is because of that. Beauty is not necessarily character—but character is beauty. There is an old and discredited belief that brains and beauty seldom go together. Today brains mean beauty, and there is small excuse for dowdy women—and be it recorded here, there are indeed few of them in the land today.

The translation of personality into beauty has become a consummate art. Our own approach to the problem is natural and, hence, scientific. It no longer means merely the application of artificial devices. It means rather the intelligent placing of accent on the good points already present—the skillful utilization of natural advantages.

And so, as never before, womankind's search for beauty is implemented with effective weapons for achievement. Results are strikingly better, and we find them more than ever fascinating and admirable.

BOOM TOWNS DOT ITALY'S EMPIRE IN EAST AFRICA

Asmara a Rush City, but Builds to Last.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia.—[By Air Mail.]—In building himself an East African empire, Premier Mussolini certainly is wasting no time in Asmara, Eritrea, the largest city of the combined territories of Eritrea, Ethiopia, and Italian Somaliland. It has an estimated population of 80,000 whites and 40,000 Eritreans.

Arrows show route from Asmara to Addis Ababa.

The observer's first impression is of a typical mining town with the gold rush at its height. There is this big difference. Instead of the temporary frame shacks thrown up during oil and gold rushes, buildings going up here and new ones completed are of concrete, stone, and steel.

There is a small gold mine near Asmara, but the output of ore is negligible. Ordinary labor is paid $2.50 a day working with inadequate machinery. In the Philippines laborers receive 50 cents a day using modern machinery. Both ores assay the same.

Streets Filled with Cars.

Asmara's streets, flanked by wide sidewalks, are being widened and paved in every direction. Cars and motorcycles whiz along. Trucks and tractor trailers add to the din.

Public buildings, residences, and stores are going up. A modern, up to date hotel, the first of eighteen to be built in Italian East Africa, has just been opened. Bars are everywhere and popular, but no drunks are seen and no evidence of gambling.

A city park has been laid out and is being beautified. The bridle path is finished and horses are arriving. A space a mile long and half a mile wide is used by the military to park their trucks and store the materials taken from Ethiopia. Nearby are three new buildings of substantial size comprising the veterinary hospital and another for a new auto school.

Skilled Work by Italians.

Skilled work is done by the Italians. Electricians observed at work had native helpers. Fifty natives were observed swinging picks and shovels in a building excavation. Italian truck drivers and foreman were at the same site. Wages are said to be 35 cents plus a small ration per day for the natives and $2.50 for the Italians.

A resident, on being asked about the great boom, mournfully shook his head and said:

"Times were really good until the Spanish war started and tightened up money."

The country surrounding Asmara is generally gravelly and poor. Farm products seem to be scarce, but there is a good sized market place in the city. Lack of water is a difficulty. The principal supply comes from lakes which are filled in the rainy season. They get pretty low in the spring.

Flying away from Asmara toward Dire Dawa and Addis Ababa, the country is different from that encountered approaching Asmara from Khartoum, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The mountains are not so rough. Shrubbery and trees increase in quantity and variety. Water shows its surface in the sunlight here and there.

The plane rises to 14,000 feet to clear the peaks. The big modern highway running south from Asmara to Addis Ababa comes into view. It has been vastly improved since the annexation of Ethiopia. Cars and trucks are seen going in both directions. Some fifty miles out of Asmara on the highway is a modern village with new tin roofs.

Ethiopian Land Improved.

The farther the plane flies the more improved land is seen. Little native villages pop up around the countryside and many individual huts give proof of agricultural activity. Some 100 miles south on the highway is a nice looking improved military airport with twelve new hangars and many other buildings.

Dire Dawa, where the plane stops for fueling, is another community being blessed with the manna from Rome. There are new buildings everywhere. An improved manufacturing establishment on the outskirts looks as if it might be a munitions plant.

Ethiopia's main railway and highways serve Dire Dawa. Two heavy caterpillar tractors and many trucks and scrapers are seen leveling the airport.

The line of flight turns west from Dire Dawa over another mountain range and to Addis Ababa, 200 miles away.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO END POLLUTION OF ILLINOIS RIVER

Springfield, Ill., April 15.—[Special.]—A meeting of persons interested in ending the pollution of the Illinois river will be held in La Salle, Ill., on April 26, Clarence W. Klassen, chief sanitary engineer of Illinois, and Dr. A. C. Baxter, acting public health director, announced today.

Representatives of municipalities and industrial concerns which use the river as a sewage outlet will confer with the sanitary water board. River municipalities have been notified by Klassen they will be expected to report on what active steps they plan or already have taken to provide adequate facilities for waste.

It was pointed out that these towns cannot now blame their delay in building sewage treatment works on the old complaint that Chicago first must stop polluting the river. The Chicago sanitary district's sewage treatment plant will be completed by the end of this year.

Kermit Roosevelt's Son Disappears from School

Groton, Mass., April 15.—(AP)—A master at the exclusive Groton school tonight declared Dirk Roosevelt, 10 year old son of Kermit Roosevelt and grandson of former President Theodore Roosevelt, disappeared from the boys' school today with another student, Henry W. Distler, 13, of Baltimore, Md. Police throughout the state were asked to look for the pair.

Mrs. Bosworth Divorced from Phone Executive

Mrs. Nellie H. Bosworth, prominent as a clubwoman, yesterday was awarded a divorce by Judge Philip J. Finnegan from Wallace C. Bosworth, 30 West Chicago avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Bosworth is district manager for the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The charge was desertion. Mrs. Bosworth now lives at 1001 Cortland street, Park Ridge.

PRACTICAL STUDY PLAN IS BETTER, JOHNSON HOLDS

Cites Lower Losses of Vocational Students.

The traditional academic system of education in Chicago high schools has been a marked failure, Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, said yesterday at the convention of the Illinois Vocational association in the Morrison hotel.

"We have found that 50 or 60 per cent of entering freshmen drop out of school before their senior year," said Dr. Johnson. "Up until last semester 2,500 to 3,000 have been dropping out annually in the first four or five months of high school. There is something fundamentally wrong with an institution losing that number of students before graduation. It is not meeting the need."

Changes Reduce Losses.

Changes in the curriculum in the last year and a half have enabled the high schools to cut their first semester enrollment losses to 350 in the first half of the present school year, said Dr. Johnson. He attributed this largely to the introduction of vocational education facilities to attract the great number who have no purpose or interest in a program for college preparation.

"Not more than 7 or 8 per cent of pupils entering high school reach college," he said.

Coupled with his program of providing industrial and technical preparatory work for those who want it, Dr. Johnson has established a department of occupational research to determine the employment and craft needs of industry and labor.

He cited a survey made by this department as evidence that special abilities and traits are required even of bank messenger boys.

Demanded Clear Thinking.

The banks surveyed hired 561 boys in 1937. The basic requirement was high school graduation, but their personnel managers were unanimous, the report showed, in demanding that the boys be able to express themselves well both orally and in writing and have a good knowledge of arithmetic, civics, economics, and health education. The banks also asked for alertness, dependability, emotional stability, poise, neatness, adaptability, and a number of similar personality traits.

Special abilities considered desirable were clerical detail, clear reasoning, accuracy, speed, and manipulative dexterity.

94, She Has Hair Bobbed and Hikes Half Mile Home

Kingwood, W. Va., April 15.—(AP)—Susan Messenger, 94 years old, stepped spryly into a barber's chair today and ordered: "Bob my hair." The barber complied and before starting her half mile hike home the agile customer said: "I'll be back in three months for another."

DR. BORGESE, NOW U. S. CITIZEN, HITS FASCISM AS LIBERTY'S ENEMY

In his first speech since becoming an American citizen, Dr. Giuseppe Antonio Borgese, exile from Italy who is professor of romance languages at the University of Chicago, yesterday denounced fascism as crushing liberty and freedom. He spoke before members of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at a luncheon in the Palmer House.

"Fascism is a steam roller," Dr. Borgese said. "Its essence lies in the substitution of power for justice. Here in America we should keep faith and attach ourselves always to the principles of freedom."

Dr. Borgese characterized fascism as being the greatest danger ever to appear on the horizon of history, making the future of Italy obscure, more so than that of Germany. Any one who can predict the outcome from the present international alignments "must be a magician," he said.

NURSE IDENTIFIES PRINTER ACCUSED OF SEX OFFENSES

Stanley Richards, 2021 Huron street, was identified at the Sheffield avenue station last night by Miss Ethel Ervin, 22 years old, a nurse at the Illinois Masonic hospital, as the man who tried to attack her at Halsted street and Wellington avenue a week ago.

Two little girls earlier had identified him as the man who tried to attack them in the home of one of them last September. Richards, a printer, 33 years old, denied both identifications. He was seized Thursday on suspicion of having tried to break into the bedroom of two young sisters at 2120 Barry avenue. He was traced through an automobile license. Richards denied this charge, too.

Police said Richards was given six months probation in 1932 for possessing obscene books, and sentenced to one year in the house of correction the same year for contributing to the delinquency of minors. He is married and father of a small son.

SUES TO DIVORCE COLLAR MODEL SHE WED THRICE

It may have been the monotony of being married to the same girl three times that cooled the ardor of Richard G. Bohn, 22 years old, model for collar advertisments. At any rate, his wife, Dorothy, 20 years old, of 2148 Eastwood avenue, sued him for divorce yesterday, charging that he had struck her.

The two eloped to Wheaton and were married in 1934 when she was 16 years old and a student at the Senn High school. Learning this marriage was invalid because of their youth, they remarried at Waukegan the next year. This marriage came to the attention of Dorothy's parents and they insisted on a third ceremony, which was performed on June 10, 1935.

New York, April 15.—(AP)—William Brewster Ely, 5 years old, son of Dr. Richard T. Ely, 84 years old, president of the Institute for Economic Research of Columbia university, has entered a class in painting in New York university. Dr. Ely said his son's creative ability had enabled him to go from kindergarten to a university class.

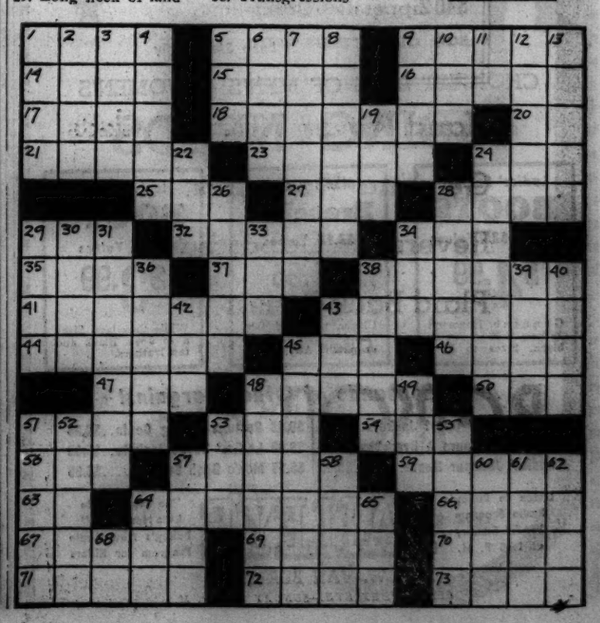
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



ARMY FACTION'S DEMANDS SPLIT JAPAN'S CABINET

Military Chiefs Ask for Full Mobilization.

TOKIO, April 16.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe today faced the first genuine Japanese government crisis since the start of the Japanese-Chinese conflict, now in its tenth month. The cabinet was sharply divided into two rival camps. The premier, it was reported, threatened to resign on the issue of whether Japan should mobilize its full military strength in an effort to achieve a quick victory over the Chinese.

Rigid censorship of news from China kept the Japanese people ignorant of developments at Taierchwang, Southern Shantung province, where the Japanese southward offensive was stopped, it was reported, with heavy losses.

Goes to See Premier.

Suehiko Shiono, minister of justice, visited Konoe, who has been resting at his villa since parliament adjourned March 26. He returned to Tokio after a half hour conference with the premier, and issued a statement that Konoe did not intend to quit.

Official pronouncements were lacking, but it was learned reliably that Gen. Gen Sugiyama, minister of war; Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, navy minister, and Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, home minister, led the faction demanding immediate enforcement of the national mobilization law passed last month and heavy reinforcements for the army.

It was believed that Konoe, who attempted to steer a liberal course since assuming office June 3, had refused the demands of this faction.

Promised Not to Use Law.

Okinobu Kaya, finance minister; Koichi Kido, minister of education, and Shiono were understood to be backing the premier. Koki Hirota, foreign minister, was the only member of the cabinet who has failed to visit the villa where Konoe was reported to be "recuperating from illness."

Prior to passage of the national mobilization bill Konoe promised the people the drastic law would not be invoked during the Chinese conflict unless the situation became serious enough to warant it. The law, which stirred up a storm in the diet, gives the government unlimited power to draft Japan's man power and economic resources in a war emergency.

Because of Konoe's promise the government now is facing the alternative of admitting military setbacks or disavowing previous assurances.

Producer Divorced

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Los Angeles, Cal., April 15.—(AP)—America's one-time "most beautiful blonde" divorced Hollywood's "handsomest producer" today.

Mrs. Justine Johnstone Wanger complained that Walter Wanger was "abrupt, surly, and discourteous." She won the beautiful blonde title 18 years ago when she was a Ziegfeld show girl and Wanger's bride.

CHINESE PIERCE JAPANESE LINES AT WALLED CITY

Fight Hand to Hand for Positions in Hills.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Chinese asserted today that their victorious army in southern Shantung province had smashed Japanese defenses on three sides of Yihsien and that recapture of the battered city was certain.

The Chinese said their forces, aided by new artillery units, had broken through Japanese defenses on the eastern, southeastern, and northeastern sides of Yihsien and that flying columns were operating against Japanese units in the surrounding highlands.

They admitted they had been unable to dislodge the Japanese from the highlands except in one instance, when a small hill was captured after a night of hand to hand fighting. The Chinese said, however, that all supply and communication lines into Yihsien had been cut.

Attack Japanese Flanks.

Japanese reinforcements were reported counter-attacking three miles west of Yihsien in an effort to break the Chinese cordon, but were hampered by swift flank attacks.

Three thousand Japanese reinforcements arrived at Chuhsien from Tsingtao, Chinese said, indicating the Japanese were planning a fresh drive in the Lini sector, northeast of Yihsien.

The reported Chinese successes at Yihsien came as Chinese still celebrated their recent victory at Taierchwang, twenty miles southeast of Yihsien. Foreign military experts estimated 7,000 to 10,000 Japanese were killed and 20,000 wounded at Taierchwang.

[Other estimates were higher, one saying that 42,000 of 62,000 Japanese troops perished.]

At Suchow, railway junction and goal of the Japanese drive in Central China, the Chinese ended a three day celebration with a huge lantern parade and a display of captured Japanese war equipment.

Japanese continued to deny Chinese reports of gains. An army spokesman said a series of "minor engagements" was going on in Southern Shantung.

The Japanese army spokesman in Shanghai refused to deny or confirm the conclusion of neutral observers that Japan suffered its first major defeat in modern times in the battle of Taierchwang.

COL. LINDBERGH BUYS A SMALL ISLAND OFF COAST OF BRITTANY

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

RENNES, France, April 15.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the American flyer, who is vacationing on the Island of Saint Gildas, today purchased the small island of Illiec off the rocky north coast of Brittany. Illiec formerly was owned by Ambrose Thomas, composer.

Col. Lindbergh, accompanied by his son and sister-in-law, is staying at the home of Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom he is collaborating in research on the prolongation of life and the function of certain organs of the human body.

Since all French islands are regarded as strategic zones that cannot be purchased by foreigners, Mme. Carrel signed the agreement for Col. Lindbergh.

Sues Wrecking Firms Who Tore Building Apart

Lino B. Pollo, who used to own a six flat building at 6348-50 Champlain avenue, filed suit for $12,000 damages in the Superior court yesterday against two wrecking companies. In his petition he alleged that he was much astonished last April when he discovered that the wreckers, without consulting him, had torn away half his building.

The National Wrecking company and the American Wrecking company are defendants. Also named in the bill are the city of Chicago, Building Commissioner Richard E. Schmidt, and several building inspectors.

HONOR WRIGHTS TODAY; FORDS TO ENTERTAIN 200

Dearborn, Mich., April 15.—Special.]—Two hundred pioneers and present day aviation leaders will assemble here tomorrow as guests of Henry and Edsel Ford to dedicate permanent memorial to Wilbur and Orville Wright, the two bicycle shop scientists who built the first successful airplane and taught the world to fly.

Orville Wright will be the guest of honor. Wilbur died in 1912, but the ceremonies are being held on the 71st anniversary of his birth. The memorial consists of the restored Wright home and the humble little bicycle shop in which the brothers made the epochal discoveries in aeronautical science that enabled them to solve the riddle of power flight.

The home and shop were brought here from Dayton, O., by Henry Ford and added to his museum of Americana-Greenfield village. The guests will include many of the original flying students of the Wright brothers, two survivors of the little group of five who witnessed the first flight, aeronautical scientists and ranking air service officers.

SECOND TRIBUNE PAPER SHIPMENT ARRIVES BY BOAT

The steamship New York News with 2,253 tons of newsprint aboard, moored at Tribune docks at 9 p. m. last night, the second of a fleet of six boats to reach Chicago with the first cargoes of newsprint of the 1938 spring shipping season. Capt. David Gendron reported a smooth trip from the paper mills at Thorold, Ont. The ice went out of the Straits of Mackinac early this year, he said.

The New York News was tied up just ahead of the big freighter Mathewston, which arrived shortly after midnight yesterday with 3,809 tons of newsprint. The motorship Chicago Tribune is expected tomorrow and will be followed by the Franquelin, the Shelter Bay, and the Thorold. The six cargoes aggregate 13,730 tons.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Fine Reporting Done on Life in a Midwest City

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"What People Said," by W. L. White. [Viking, $2.75.] Published Monday.

In this chronicle of life in a small midwestern city a new pen scratches its initials on the tablet of fame. Scratches, not carves, because only his future work will determine whether the name of W. L. White will be made permanent there by his literary virtues or be eroded by his literary vices.

Young Mr. White, who modestly does not declare on the jacket of his book [or anywhere else] that he is the son of a famous father, William Allen White, has done as neat a job of reporting as we have met in many a day.

He knows how the people in the midwest live, what they think, and why they act as they do. He knows how politics manages and doesn't manage, how business becomes a more personal relationship in a small city and has neither the cold-bloodedness nor the disinterested honesty of big city business. He has done, it seems to me, the exact recording in fiction that "Middletown" and "Middletown in Transition" were in fact. He has been actually a truer reporter of his "main street" than Sinclair Lewis was of his.

And, hidden under the reporting, there is wholesome, satiric interpretation of human relationships without sentimentalizing and without caricaturing.

"What People Said" has obvious virtues beyond most novels. BUT—its vices are equally obvious. It is far too long. It has almost two different patterns. The first half of the book is panoramic, concerns midwestern home life, politics, business in general. The second half concentrates on the rise and fall of one young man. That rise and fall involve many of the characters in the town and in the state, but Lee Norsex is a focal point, while in the first half of the books there is no such individual focus.

I have gone thus into the analysis of this novel because it seems to me to represent excellence in one of the characteristically American fictional forms and because, despite its perfectly obvious faults, "What People Said" contains some of the stuff of which the great American novel will someday be made.

Chronicle of a Family Under Nazis' Regime.

"The Mortal Storm," by Phyllis Bottome.

Phyllis Bottome, author of that spectacular novel, "Private Worlds," which so delicately portrayed the scientific conquest of insanity, has chosen for this novel a background little more, apparently, built upon the laws of logic. Germany in the first days of the Nazi régime, when the whole structure of a society was remade, is the period against which the tragedy of a family divided against itself is painted.

The head of the happy Munich family [as the book opens] is a nonorthodox Jewish doctor, a Nobel prize winner. His wife is from a noble family, pure Aryan. The children are two older boys by her first marriage to a pure German, Von Rohn, and a 20 year old daughter and a 12 year old son by the distinguished Jewish father. They compose a group devoted to one another, happy in a security which seems to have no possible weakness, economically, socially, or in the esteem of their fellow men.

The two older boys become ardent Nazis. The girl, a brilliant student, seems destined to follow her distinguished father as a doctor, when an accident casts her across the path of a stalwart young peasant who is a communist. Inexorably fate weaves tragedy for them all as the Nazi power becomes stronger and stronger.

The oldest boy, in his zeal for Nazism, orders his sister's lover shot, and before the book ends the old scientist is dead, his wife is taking in boarders in order to exist, the daughter has borne her lover's child and escaped to America, and obviously no one can feel that the family ties have not been permanently broken.

Others' Experiences in a Factual Record.

"Savage Symphony," by Eva Lips. [Random, $3].

A factual record paralleling Phyllis Bottome's fiction is this chronicle of what happened to Julius Lips, former director of the Ethnological museum in Cologne, when the Nazis came into power there.

Prof. Lips was of pure Aryan stock. He was urged by the Nazis to retain his post and asked only to turn his internationally respected scientific pen to the proof of the superiority of the Aryan race. He was a scientist, and he preferred to remain one. So he refused to do as he was requested, and resigned. Believing that the best way to prove that a museum can't be run by a man not equipped scientifically for the position, he recommended [ironically] his least brilliant pupil for his vacated post.

There followed such a series of minor persecutions, of legal charges of slander, of police harassments, of trumped up accusations, and, finally, of seriously dangerous threats, as a fiction writer would be hard put to to invent. The slow seepage of fear into the hourly life of what had been a happy household is told with impressive simplicity by Eva Lips.

She and her husband finally escaped, to come to New York at the invitation of Columbia university. But the Nazis had their final vindictive gesture. The Lipses had a dog which they loved devotedly and for which Eva Lips had found a happy home before she departed. As she boarded the boat for America she found a sad note informing her the dog had died of poison and that beside his body had been found a note decorated with a swastika and reading: "To Prof. Lips: He who will not yield to Hitler deserves to die like a dog."

Offenbach and Paris Are One in This Volume

BY RUSSELL MAC FALL.

"Orpheus in Paris: Offenbach and the Paris of His Time," by S. Kracauer. [Knopf, $4.]

Jacques Offenbach is scarcely more than a name today, even to the operagoer, although thousands have whistled his "Barcarolle" unaware that he composed it. But in the period of the American civil war he was the Orpheus of the Olympian revels in Paris, and all the world was mad about him. Paris of the boulevards, of the glittering second empire, of the Jockey club, the reigning courtesans and dandies, was the civilized world, so its inhabitants believed, and all the rest of the world paid them the devotion of pilgrimage and fashionable servitude.

Paris in its golden age and Offenbach are inseparable; M. Kracauer has wisely treated them as one in his picture of the rise and fall of the empire of Napoleon III. For just as Paris rose from the humiliation of Waterloo to fantastic wealth and spacious beauty, so Offenbach, the German Jew, first fiddled for a living, then won the fame his firefly genius craved.

Paris struck down by Bismarck danced again, but underneath was a new and grim determination; Offenbach, a bankrupt, supplanted in favor by Johann Strauss and other nimble tunemakers, penned his master work, "The Tales of Hoffmann," in which the melodies sounded from a profounder and disillusioned spirit.

This music master was the child and the epitome of all things Parisian, and like them he is as frivolous as love, as timeless as beauty, and as inexhaustible as the comic spirit.

A Store of Information for Opera's Devotees.

"Opera Front and Back," by H. Howard Taubman. [Scribners, $3.75.]

Mr. Taubman's entertaining volume is to the operaphile what the movie magazines are to the film fan. For the Metropolitan, like Hollywood, is big business, and since the radio and the singies have brought opera stars to the people, curiosity about the life backstage may be expected among many more millions than will ever sit in the diamond horseshoe.

Legends and anecdotes inevitably cluster about such gifted people as Caruso, Martinelli, Emmy Destinn, Lily Pons, Kirstin Flagsted, Melchior, and the rest whose names sprinkle these pages. Mr. Taubman has zealously collected the anecdotes, retold them with zest and commendable irreverence, and, with the familiarity of one to whom the stage door always is open, he dispels the legends by explaining the business of making an opera production.

If you are curious he will tell you how much the singers are paid, how the orchestra is rehersed, how the ballet is trained, how the stars and chorus are guided through their paces, the headaches of making a schedule and managing a company, which operas are most popular, and how tickets are sold and the scalpers confounded. He has written an anatomy of the Metropolitan and to some extent of all opera companies, with frequent side glances at Chicago's own opera. A fat sheaf of candid camera photographs is in keeping with this glimpse behind the scenes.

'Helen Keller's Journal' Is Full of Keen Insight

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

"Helen Keller's Journal," by Helen Keller. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.]

How does Helen Keller meet the world since the death of her great teacher and companion, who gave her mental concepts despite lack of sight and hearing? Here are the answers cracking down on self-pitiers.

Anne Sullivan Macy died in 1936. It has been another uphill fight for her student since then, but it seems she has reached the top. With enviable keenness of perception Miss Keller writes here of the world's recent doings and her part in them. Her journal is chock-full of her life behind the scenes.

Those who have not read any of her six previous books will find this a fascinating explanation of her powers. And the vast audience of those who are familiar with her life will be glad to read this account of her continued development.

Veteran Novelist Turns Out Her Autobiography.

"Three Rousing Cheers," by Elizabeth Jordan. [Appleton-Century, $3.]

Fresh from a convent, Elizabeth Jordan tackled the rough and tumble newspaper world. As a reporter she covered almost every kind of an assignment. She met and marveled at Helen Keller when both were young girls.

Ten years of able newspaper work opened the way to a magazine editorship. She helped introduce to the world Sinclair Lewis, Dorothy Canfield, and Zona Gale, and thus acquired some literary anecdotes told here for the first time.

Great personalities are on parade. Her memories are such a blend of humor and sympathy that you will cherish them, too. The book has a restful charm. Miss Jordan turned out a dozen novels before setting forth her autobiography.

A Woman Reporter's Thrilling Adventures.

"On My Own," by Mary Knight. [Macmillan, $3.]

Mary Knight has been on her own for only six years. But in that time she has become a sort of female Richard Halliburton, always doing the things that make a good story. A reporter and a good one, she was paid for her adventures and now may collect again with this entertaining personal history. It may all be a bit too pat, but you may be sure that she planned it that way.

Ingredients Well Mixed in Tropical Adventure.

"Burmese Silver," by Edward Thompson. [Dutton, $2.50.]

All that any one could wish for in a tropical adventure story is found, in excellent array in "Burmese Silver." Assemble a cast of head hunters, a half native princess, a cross section of British colonial officialdom, and a Chinese war lord, and place them in a misty land rich in silver and rubies; then almost any sort of a plot would be sufficient. In the hands of a first class writer, success is doubly assured.

Three Books About Phases of the Sea.

"Great Fishes, Whales, and Dolphins," by J. R. Norman and F. C. Fraser. [Norton, $4.]

"Hurricanes, Their Nature and History," by Ivan Ray Tannehill. [Princeton University Press, $3.50.]

"First Class Passenger," edited by August Mencken. [Knopf, $3.]

The two authors of "Great Fishes, Whales, and Dolphins," both of the British museum's department of zoology, wrote this entertaining volume because of the numerous and varied inquiries received at the museum for facts concerning whales, dolphins, and the larger kinds of fishes.

"Hurricanes" is the only book in print in any language that contains a broad and comprehensive treatment of the nature and history of the West Indian wind menace, it is claimed. The author is chief of the marine division of the United States weather bureau. He puts into popular form just about all that is worth while of the world's knowledge of hurricanes based on years of experience in the hurricane warning service, both in the field and at the central bureau.

August Mencken, brother of H. L. Mencken and a civil engineer who is greatly interested in ships, has edited a quaint and attractive anthology of "life at sea as experienced and recorded by voyaging landlubbers of the past" in "First Class Passenger." Twenty-five accounts by first class passengers range from one by E. W. Howe, late sage of Kansas, in 1913, back to "the first recorded paying passenger" in 750 B. C. Dickens' and Mark Twain's accounts of trans-Atlantic crossings are included. The book has many illustrations. A. C.

Economics Dramatized in Pictures and Words.

"The Greatest Show on Earth," by S. A. Spencer. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.95.]

Here is economics dramatized with photographs and an absorbing script. The work of making economics live for the average reader is an ambitious one and with less daring and original treatment would no doubt fail. Here the story of man's struggle for worldly goods is presented with 120 full pages of photographs by such camera artists as Margaret Bourke-White, Sara, Keppler, Aarons and others. Running captions and text unfold the great pageant of man at work.

In swiftly moving cycles there burst upon the reader mass production, prosperity, depression, and recovery. The dismal science of economics takes life and lives. It makes a stirring narrative that implants a definite understanding of our national ups and downs. C. L.

Friends of American Writers' Check a Gift for Poetry Magazine

In the announcements of the recent awards of the Friends of American Writers, it was erroneously stated that Robert Dillon was given a prize of $100 for poetry. The facts are these: The $100 check was an annual contribution of that amount made by the society and one of numerous such gifts to the guarantors' fund of Poetry magazine. This year the check was accepted for the magazine by its new editor, George Dillon.

George Dillon, who recently returned from the east after two years in Europe, is one of the leading young American poets. He was associate editor of Poetry, 1925 to 1927, and it was in Chicago that he wrote his internationally acclaimed "Boy in the Wind" and "The Flowering Stone." He and his staf are earnestly trying to carry on Harriet Monroe's ideal of making Poetry magazine of service to poets as well as to poetry. As its editor he is endeavoring to get contributions for prizes for other poets, not for himself, and we are happy to correct the error which has caused embarrassment to Mr. Dillon and the members of his staf and to wish him and them increasing success. OIL RICHES HIRE TRAIN; BRING 21 CHILDREN TO CITY

Kansan Is Open Handed Host at Loop Hotel.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A former mule driver in the oil fields who struck it rich three years ago, after several small successes and ensuing tough luck, arrived here yesterday to enjoy his idea of a good time.

L. E. Douglass.

This good time will cost L. E. Douglass of Hutchinson, Kas., around $6,000, and none of that will be spent on champagne or dissipation. His first item was $2,965, paid to the Santa Fe railway for chartering a special five car train. Into it he escorted his wife, Mildred, and twenty-one children, including three children of their own and eighteen playmates of the youngsters, with sixteen adult friends to look after them.

$100 for Ice Cream Rabbits.

The whole troupe arrived in Chicago in the morning after breakfast on the train and went to the Palmer house for a three day stay, at $700 a day for nineteen rooms and meals. An extra item at dinner in the Empire room last night was $100 for ice cream Easter rabbits and $50 for Easter posies on the tables.

Today the women of the party will take the girls and visit State street stores, with Easter shopping in view. The boys and men will go to a ball game. Tomorrow they will go to the Chicago Zoological park in Brookfield. Monday they will return to Kansas by special train.

Unlike Walter [Death Valley Scotty] Scott, the colorful desert gold prospector who in 1905 gained nationwide attention by chartering the Coyote special of the Santa Fe from Death Valley, Cal., to Chicago, Douglass, with his cargo of children, did not try to break speed records.

Mosey Over at 51 Miles an Hour.

Scotty's special broke all records, going from Los Angeles to Chicago in 44 hours and 54 minutes. This record stood for years. Douglass' special, which he named the June, Delores, and Jimmy special, after his children, 14, 12, and 6 years old, moseyed along leisurely and made fifty-one miles an hour in comparison to Scotty's fifty miles.

Mr. Douglass, a sunburned, pleasant faced man in tweeds, who appeared restless in the flower laden formal drawing room of his suite, replied shyly to questions about himself. A native of West Virginia, he helped drill one of the first producing wells in central Kansas.

He drove teams and trucks, dressed tools, drilled wells, and pumped oil before riches came his way. In recent weeks he sold a 640 acre lease with four producing wells for from $600,000 to $900,000. He has fourteen producing wells left, besides 2,500 acres north of Hutchinson, where drilling is in progress, about which he won't make predictions.

Asked to explain how perseverence and hard work raised him from oil field worker to wealth, he said, "Aw, it was just luck."

BUNDESEN LOSES 'APPEAL OF SUIT OVER $52,000 DEAL

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, lost his fight in the state Supreme court at Springfield yesterday to recover $52,681 on a real estate deal in which he charged he was cheated. Dr. Bundesen contended he bought property west of Evanston in the belief that a state road would be constructed near it.

The Cook County Superior court ruled in favor of the A. A. Lewis Realty association, which had been sued by Bundesen, but the Illinois Appellate court reversed the finding. The Supreme court reversed the Appellate court, holding that Dr. Bundesen should have ascertained for himself whether or not a state road was to have been built.

Divorced Again

MRS. BETH D. STROUD.

CLARENCE STROUD.

Clarence Stroud, the scholarly one of the Stroud twins, radio comedians, was divorced yesterday by Beth Dodge Stroud, 27 years old, of 518 Cornelia street. They were first married in 1930 and were divorced the same year at Johnston City. They met in San Francisco two years later and were remarried. In 1936 they separated again, Mrs. Stroud charging that Clarence struck her when she complained that he was drinking too much. Judge Grover C. Niemeyer approved a $5,000 settlement for Mrs. Stroud and ordered the husband pay $30 a week each for the support of his two children, Beth, 5 years old, and Charles, 2.

WOMAN'S NOTES ARE SCANNED IN BRATTEN KILLING

Marion, Ill., April 15.—[Special.]—A married woman whose love letters to Arno Bratten, former Marion educator, were found in his home following his slaying was questioned tonight by authorities investigating the mysterious killing and emasculation.

The woman and her husband were questioned at length by Frank Figueira, state crime investigator, who has taken charge of the inquiry. The husband denied complicity in the slaying and said he knew nothing of his wife's friendship with Bratten until she told him this week after her letters were found. The couple's names were not revealed.

Figueira also said he was investigating a clew based on the tragic breakup of a lifelong friendship just before Bratten was slain.

Bratten's body, his throat cut, and his chest stabbed many times, was found in a creek near Carbondale on April 6. He had been missing since Feb. 14, when he told his family he was going to a political meeting. Bratten, who was 58 years old and the father of four grown sons and daughters, became a school book salesman after he resigned as principal of the Marion Township High school several years ago.

TERRORIZE FIFTY IN $500 HOLDUP OF BUS STATION

Two robbers in their shirt sleeves ran into an interurban bus station and restaurant at 5212 South Cicero avenue at noon yesterday and after terrorizing fifty patrons fled with $500.

One of the men, who carried a short shotgun, roughly ordered the customers to be quiet and keep their hands in the air. The other, who carried a pistol, went into the office. There he demanded that Mrs. Sarah E. Henry, wife of the owner, turn over the cash. When Mrs. Henry attempted to resist he thrust her into the waiting room and warned her she would be killed by his partner if she did not keep quiet.

Mrs. Henry reported to the police that the men also took checks for $400, which had been cashed for WPA workers.

SOME OF THE THINGS HE FORGOT TO SAY.

For three-quarters of an hour on Thursday evening the President had the radio audience to himself. Without significant exceptions the broadcasting stations of the country carried his talk. The speech was calculated to win to his support those who pay little attention to public affairs or have short memories. It was a daring speech because it assumed that such people constituted the vast majority of his audience and would, therefore, accept his conclusions without question.

But for the rest it was a revelation which cannot easily be forgotten. Time after time he drew conclusions based on no facts, on half the facts, or on misstatements of fact.

He made much of the threat of dictatorship. Nations abandon democracy, he said, when they despair of their government's ability to relieve economic distress. That is half the truth. The other—and for the immediate purpose, the more important—half is that one of the most fruitful causes of widespread despair among a people is the experience of having gone through an inflation. When that has happened to them they are ready for anything. The stable elements in the population have been destroyed. The old are embittered over the loss of their savings and the young over the wreckage of opportunity. Mr. Roosevelt's program is frankly intended to be inflationary. Its consequences for the preservation of our democracy may be judged accordingly.

Priming the pump, said the President, will so improve general business conditions that the government's revenues from taxes will soon be so much increased that the additional debt can be discharged. He had said the same thing in a number of his budget messages, but the promises were never redeemed. He claimed for his previous primings of the pump that they had brought about widespread improvement of the sort he was describing. But they didn't lead to the reduction of the debt incurred, which has mounted steadily throughout his administration and is now 16 billion dollars larger than it was when he took office. If pump-priming produces prosperity and prosperity brings about a reduction in the debt, as he says, what happened to this cycle between 1934 and 1937? Whatever advantage was gained by the first series of primings disappeared in the 1937 depression, but the debt remained. What reason is there to think that the present proposals will lead to a different result?

Mr. Roosevelt asked his audience to believe that the only measures affecting business which he has taken since January, 1937, were four bills which he had presented to congress. These bills were by no means as innocuous as he pretended; one of them, the undistributed profits tax, was a principal cause of the 1937 depression. But even if this and the other measures had had no effect on business, they could not, by any stretch of the imagination, be regarded as the only things he had done. He forgot that his attempt to pack the Supreme court had indicated a purpose to undermine economic as well as political liberty. He forgot that in the spring of 1937 he had precipitated the depression by declaring to the country that interest rates and prices were too high. He forgot what he had done to force a business contraction through increasing the bank reserve requirements. He forgot his many attacks on business in speeches and interviews; his fomenting of labor disorders; his repeated attacks on the utility business. And he quite overlooked the fact that many of the things he did before Jan. 1, 1937, have had cumulative effects and will continue to unsettle the nation's economy as long as he remains in office.

He attributed to pump-priming such recovery as the country enjoyed between 1933 and 1937, but forgot to mention that real recovery dated almost from the moment that the Supreme court invalidated NRA. It was then that the sustained rise began. Perhaps that was too long ago for him to remember, but he could hardly have forgotten the spontaneous rise in the markets only a week ago when the house defeated his reorganization bill.

He talks to many men in many walks of life, Mr. Roosevelt said, to get ideas and inspiration. That was no doubt a reference to his conferences with big and little business men. He forgot to say that after these talks he consistently and persistently refused to do what these men urged upon him. They wanted him to take a more reasonable stand on undistributed profits and capital gains taxes, to reduce spending, and cease attacking business; instead he has continued to do precisely the opposite. Mr. Roosevelt's ideas and inspiration, now as always, come from himself and the little group of like-minded men whom he has selected as his advisers.

Again, the President sought to create the impression that the recovery after 1933 was unprecedented. It was, but not in the sense he intended. We have had many depressions in this country and after each of them the country has reached new heights of prosperity before another slump began. Each peak has been higher than the last one. We recovered, more slowly than usual, from the low point in 1932, but when the new depression began in 1937 we were still far below the 1929 peak. The subsequent decline has been the most rapid in American economic history. If that experience had been stated fully, as it should have been, Mr. Roosevelt and his listeners would have been forced to conclude that the borrowing and spending of billions to create purchasing power is bad medicine for a sick nation.

WHEN MR. TAFT REVERSED HIMSELF.

Somewhere in the papers of William Howard Taft there may be an explanation of his strange reversal of attitude toward the sanitary district of Chicago and the Illinois waterway of which it is a part. An understanding of his change of heart would be particularly valuable at this time when congress is giving consideration to the Parsons bill authorizing the continuance of the present diversion of 5,000 cubic feet a second from Lake Michigan for the Illinois waterway.

Mr. Taft as secretary of war authorized the taking of 10,000 cubic feet. He was fully acquainted with the later history of that allotment. He knew that it was given tacit recognition in our treaty with Canada, ratified in 1910 when he was President. Under that treaty Canada was permitted to divert 36,000 second feet for power at Niagara and the United States was allowed only 20,000 in view of the fact that at Chicago the United States was diverting 10,000 feet. He knew, also, that no specific mention of the Chicago diversion was made in the 1910 treaty because our state department took the view that Lake Michigan was wholly an American lake and its waters were not subject to international negotiation.

Mr. Taft knew all these things because in his official capacity he had been obliged to pass on them. He knew also of the friendly litigation undertaken to test the constitutional question whether the sanitary district was to be bound by the permit for diversion which he had signed or was subject to an act of the state legislature.

Years later, when Mr. Taft was chief justice of the Supreme court, he wrote the opinion in the lake level case. The decision, calling, in effect, for a progressive reduction in the diversion to 1,500 feet, reversed his previous action as secretary of war and as President. It also reversed the finding submitted to the court by Charles Evans Hughes, who [not a member of the court at that time] had been appointed by Mr. Taft as special master to take the evidence and make recommendations. It seems probable that Mr. Taft's associates on the bench gave great weight to his opinion on the case because he possessed or was thought to possess a most intimate acquaintance with the subject.

At any rate, Mr. Taft's opinion was the opinion of the court. In the light of his previous acts as an administrator, his decision against the sanitary district was inexplicable at the time he gave it and the passage of time has provided no clew to account for it.

CHILDREN OF THE SCREEN.

The little boys and girls of the movies are often the legal problem children of the courts. Theirs are the most extraordinary of lives. The baby and juvenile stars often reverse normal expectations completely. They reach their zenith soon after they are able to walk and talk, and adolescence, instead of opening a door to the future, closes it upon a past which has been tucked away before they are ready for high school. Their fame and their fortunes are both acquired before they are well into their teens.

Instead of being financially dependent upon parents or guardians they are paid fabulous salaries, and support their parents or custodians in luxury. They are incapable of selling their services themselves, making contracts or building up their own fortunes against the day when youth and earning ability will disappear together.

It may be that the sum total of their gainful lives will be condensed within the ten years between five and fifteen, if indeed for so long a time. Within this golden period they make hundreds of thousands of dollars and when it is ended they may be among the world's ordinary people, with no prospect of earning more than a moderate livelihood and be in luck if they can earn that.

Occasionally there is a genius of the stage who matures with years and in each phase of development has the talents which guarantee continuing success. But that happens so infrequently that it cannot be included among the prospects of the many juvenile stars who can make a great deal of money on the screen until age in youth begins to destroy their peculiar ability and their precocious box office attractions. Then they are out in the world and if their earnings have not been safeguarded for them all they have is only the recollection of youthful triumphs and fame which has faded in their hands, leaving them nothing that the world wants to pay to see.

LAWS AND MORE LAWS.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Moses was presented with only Ten Commandments and Woodrow Wilson delivered fourteen points to the Versailles peace conference, but legislatures of forty-three American states in regular sessions last year enacted 18,483 new laws. This record is a tribute to the ingenuity of the senators and representatives who from coast to coast have joyously assumed the burden of regulating other people's lives.

That only 1,245, or about 7 per cent, of these bills were vetoed would suggest that some state executives were not so alert as they might be.

First prize goes to Minnesota where, out of 3,037 proposals for the salvation of organized society, only 495 were enacted. Ohio's record could be worse. Of the 1,085 measure cast before the lawgivers at Columbus only 208 were approved.

Thomas Jefferson proclaimed that the government is best which governs least. He would be more than mildly surprised were he to observe this interesting and somewhat alarming development in the democracy he helped to found for the protection of the rights of man.

WHY NOT U. S. SUCCESSORS TO SALZBURG?

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Jascha Heifetz, the world famous violinist, has long contended that the European music festivals maintained their prestige as a result of tradition reinforced by snobbism rather than by reason of tangible advantages. He is a stout proponent of the idea that the United States, as the richest and the freest country in the world, should establish its own festival centers and invite the world to come and hear.

Now that Salzburg has suffered an irrecoverable loss of prestige through the resignation of Toscanini and many singers and the forced removal of Max Reinhardt and Bruno Walter, the idea becomes even more feasible. There are many possible festival sites in the country, sites that are favored by agreeable summer weather and beautiful scenery. And since the necessary artistic resources would be as easy to assemble in summer as in winter, it remains only for a sufficiently interested organization to take up the project.

AT EASTER.

When once again the brooding hill is starred
With half-blown buds, and wild plum trees let fall
Their white spindrift; when husks all brown and hard Burst forth in petaled bloom, and over all
Translucent light is poured; then all the old
Frustrated dreams are laid aside and new Fulfilments lure the heart. Then from the cold
White ash of burnt-out hope life glows anew.
And so, when blue transparent skies announce
Renascent bough and burgeoned leaf may you
Feel life resurge, and willingly renounce
All wintry ways. May Easter time renew
Your kinship with the green enchanted sod,
The mystic flowering of your faith in God.

WILL YOU PLEASE FORWARD to Miss Rosamond Webber, who, according to the Line, is reading a copy of "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," published by Charles L. Webster & Co., a word of caution? You might ask her to check on page 57, line 23. And, while the subject is books, the dedication of the first edition of "Ben Hur" is to "The Wife of My Youth." So many of Lew Wallace's friends inferred from this that he had been married twice and that he had dedicated his book to his first wife that, when the book was reprinted the dedication was changed to read "To the Wife of My Youth, Who Still Abides with Me," eliminating any conjecture as to his marital status. Short Short Story.

E. T. McLeod, a pilot for a Los Angeles aircraft company, who was in town the other day, recently delivered a new plane to the maharajah of Jodhpur. While he was in Jodhpur McLeod decided to buy his wife some chinchilla skins, and, at the maharajah's suggestion, had a coat made there. When it was done the maharajah made a gift of the coat to McLeod. It now is being held in the Los Angeles customs office for $12,000 duty.

ONE OF THE FEW CHINCHILLA COATS of comparable value in this country is said to be the one Kay Francis sometimes wears.

SATURDAY BEFORE EASTER DOWNTOWN—The strains of "Rock of Ages" sounded from the Methodist temple tower, a man-size yellow Easter bunny strolled through the toy department, and the cackles of a mechanical hen toy were drawing customers. In the record shops customers were buying Mozart's "Alleluja," Fauré's "The Palms," sung by John McCormack, and organ records of Easter music. Wax models in the windows wore wigs of white flowers. The odor of chocolate from a dozen counters of chocolate rabbits and chickens wafted through the door of the five and ten cent store and inside a blonde girl at one of the counters was writing J. GIVE BABIES MOTHER'S MILK.

THE less we interfere with nature the more certain will we be to possess good health. But we are living in an age of substitutes, some of which are both useful and satisfactory. When it comes to the human system, however, one may doubt the utility of many man-made products. It would take a regiment of chemists manning elaborately equipped laboratories to manufacture artifically all the secretions used by the body in a five minute period. Nevertheless, we will persist in "processing" foods—even unnecessarily.

After the birth of a child, the mother's breasts provide the exact formula required. In fact, the stomach of the newborn is not ready for milk for several days. The first fluid—called colostrum—contains no curd but affords minerals, sugar, some fat, and many other materials protective in character. As a result, the infant's digestive tract is cleared out and made ready for milk at the right time. It never is wise to give the baby anything except a small quantity of boiled water until the first nursing period arrives. The usual rule is that the tot should be put to the breast within four to six hours after delivery and every four hours for the first three days thereafter.

There are relatively few mothers who cannot nurse their offspring, and the chances are that they are missing a vital health building factor if that is not done. It is not only best for the child, but also for the mother. It helps the uterus to contract and many difficulties with the pelvic organs which may make their appearance later thus will be avoided.

Artificial feeding, on the other hand, has achieved great perfection—at least as far as outward effects are concerned. The baby takes the nourishment well, gains in weight, and seems perfectly healthy. But are we certain that this is the correct foundation upon which to build a rugged constitution? Despite perfection in the preparation, no formula can equal that formed by the mother's own glands.

But sometimes the mammary apparatus refuses to secrete at all, or to furnish an adequate amount. Worry, insufficient sleep, a difficult labor, physical exhaustion before or after confinement, and an improper diet all play a rôle. But here again nature comes to the rescue. She demands that even the tired, worn-out woman shall use every atom of her strength to produce good lacteal fluid. It may be at the expense of her health and—in such circumstances—artificial feeding should be resorted to. But no matter how little is supplied it should be used.

If some attention is given the breasts during pregnancy, there will be comparatively little soreness or inverted nipples. If necessary a shield can be used to protect the parts. We must realize that the sucking muscles of the young one's mouth are extremely powerful and the episode of nursing may become painful. If the nipples are inclined to crack, good care will prevent trouble. In only a relatively small number of instances will weaning be indicated.

Some women do not succeed in nursing because they will not observe the clocklike regularity which is essential. The intervals should be regular—three or four hour periods—and if this is rigidly followed, the youngster may be allowed to nurse as long as he wishes. But the little rascal must be kept awake and busy and not be permitted to sleep. In other words, he must be forced to keep his mind on the job.

The whole matter should be one of pride and not of convenience.

BINDER OFTEN HELPS.

P. writes: What are the symptoms of a dropped bowel?

REPLY.

Much more is made of this condition than can be justified medically. The fact is that the bowel will perform satisfactorily in almost any position. In women of the tall, thin, spare type the organs within the abdomen may drop to a low level. In such cases a snug abdominal binder is helpful. Symptoms, such as dull aching, vague abdominal cramps, and constipation are usually traceable to other causes.

When a man makes not less than $60 per week [6] how much alimony should he pay a wife with two children—12 and 14 years old? 7. 1. In general, the effects of a separate maintenance decree would depend on the wording of the decree. It is not clear what question you intend to ask.

2. We do not understand whether you are asking as to indebtedness of third parties or of the wife.

3. In general, rights in the insurance policies depend on the wording of the policies.

CIRCUS DAYS.

Chicago, April 12.—The circus is coming back to the Chicago Stadium again. Now I would like you to see if you cannot do anything about the circus charging as much to get in for children as they do for adults. Why are they allowed to get away with a money making scheme like that? I have two children and last year I had to pay $1.30 for each of them and the same for myself. I have a boy 12 and a girl 9. I do not think that the city of Chicago ought to allow an outside firm to come to Chicago and fleece the people of Chicago in this manner. Every other showhouse in Chicago charges half price for children and most of them even less than half price. EDWARD BAUER.

EXPLANATION DESIRED.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 13.—What are the underlying causes for such paradoxical actions as we have witnessed the last five years on the part of our chief executive in Washington? His breach of faith, breach of oath of office, his constant efforts to undermine the constitution and undermine the Supreme court? His unreasoning hate of opposition, his vindictiveness and refusal to acknowledge the errors of his ways? His sonorous, soothing and reassuring voice on one hand and a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde complex on the other? His utter recklessness and irresponsibility with the taxpayers' money, and his insatiable love of adulation and grasp for power, and more power?

Please tell us in language of the layman to what you attribute the utter collapse of a once very promising leader. INQUIRER.

SHORT-SIGHTED.

Chicago, April 13.—Headlines this morning say, "Jarecki and Lucas Winners." It took several Republican votes to support this crowd. Talk about the height of foolishness! Here you have a bunch of folks out trying to beat the Kelly-Nash machine and at the same time they lose their right to vote Republican in the mayoralty primary next year. If that isn't helping Kelly I will ask you another. Then, too, if they were so anxious to beat the Kelly crowd, why didn't they vote Republican so they could let the Kelly bunch win in this primary and in so doing they would place an easy man for us awake Republicans to beat in the next regular election. It seems the kick from the mule must be sweet. C. E.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

Chicago, April 12.—Here are three reasons why my entire family went to the polls to vote against all candidates sponsored by the Kelly-Nash régime: [1] They have allowed bicyclists to swarm upon our sidewalks until it is now no longer safe to walk on them. [2] They have let ice cream peddlers yell and ring bells up and down our residential streets each summer until our patience has become utterly exhausted. [3] Every Sunday they have let a swarm of boys rush back and forth until way past noon, screaming and bawling to sell their Sunday newspapers. Every one of these practices is against the ordinances, but the Kelly-Nash police force persistently refuses to do anything about enforcement. TAXPAYER.

URGE STATE G.O.P. MEETING AWAIT DRIVE FOR VOTES

Primary Winners Want Convention Delayed.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A move to postpone the Republican state convention from April 29 to June or early September was launched yesterday by victorious candidates of Tuesday's primary election. By delaying action it is hoped to focus attention on the G. O. P. slate at a time when an intensive drive for votes for November's election is under way.

In a meeting yesterday of candidates with party managers Edward Moore, Cook county chairman and chief factor in bringing about a harmonized slate in the primaries, urged that the convention be held early in September. He also advocated the selection of Richard J. Lyons, nominee for United States senator, to make the keynote address. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] had been proposed previously.

Committee Meets April 28.

The state committee is to meet at Springfield the night of April 28. The state convention on April 29, the date set by law, is to be perfunctory, with only a handful present, and a recess is to be taken, it was planned.

The state candidates will not wait for a platform before plunging into their campaigns. Lyons has announced that he plans to spend all summer downstate, going into villages, hamlets and cities and making six to twelve speeches a day on street corners. The Lyons plan is to talk against dictatorship, the Roosevelt burocracy, high taxes, growing unemployment and what he calls "the New Deal Octopus."

Democrats May Meet April 29.

The full Democratic convention may be held April 29, the day provided in the primary law, instead of being adjourned. The state conventions nominate three candidates for university trustees and draft a state platform.

Gov. Horner will come to Chicago today to make a radio address, in which he is expected to thank the voters for nominating most of his state and county ticket in last Tuesday's Democratic primaries, and also to decide the location of the post-primary victory conferences with the leaders of his faction.

In his speech Mr. Horner may make a sort of state fireside chat on the problems before the administration as a preliminary for a special session of the legislature which he is expected to convene late this month or early in May.

The governor, State's Attorney Courtney, County Judge Jarecki, and others who aided in the slate victory, are likely to go to some southern spa early next week for a few days.

Congressman Scott W. Lucas of Havana, Democratic senatorial nominee who was supported by the governor, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to Washington.

SERGEANT BRYAN WILL QUIT ARMY AFTER 30 YEARS

Master Sergeant William Bryan, known to thousands of reserve officers in the 86th [Blackhawk] division in the Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan area, will retire from active duty with the United States army on April 30, having completed thirty years' service, it was announced yesterday at 6th corps area headquarters.

Sergt. William Bryan.

In 1910 Sergt. Bryan was awarded the distinguished service cross for extraordinary service. The citation shows that, disregarding his own life, he ran into a burning powder magazine at Fortress Monroe, Va., and carried out a number of men who had been stunned by an explosion. After he had carried his fellow soldiers to safety, he dragged out the major portion of the powder, thus preventing an explosion of the entire magazine.

Sergt. Bryan has been attached to the Illinois military area since 1921. Before that he saw active service with the army in France and had served with various regiments at almost every army post of consequence in the United States.

ORDER 650 CASES OFF RELIEF ROLL IN STATE CAPITAL

Shakeup Asked After IERC Inquiry.

Investigators for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission reported yesterday that they had recommended removal from the Springfield, Ill., relief rolls of 650 cases, or 44 per cent of 1,452 cases they examined in the state capital.

A summary prepared by Carl H. Martini of the IERC staf showed that investigators for the commission have now recommended denial of further relief in 1,805 cases in twelve downstate counties. These cases represent 38 per cent of 4,475 cases studied by the state investigators. A report on the situation in Venice township of Madison county is still to be made.

Drastic Reorganization Urged.

As a result of the Springfield investigation the IERC yesterday approved recommendations for a drastic reorganization of the relief administration in Capital township, the boundaries of which coincide with those of Springfield.

The recommendations included one for establishment of a central intake office which would have single and final authority on the acceptance of new and reapplying cases. It also was suggested that a manual of policy be drawn up to promote uniformity in policies and procedures in granting relief. Members of the commission said a shortage of administration funds will make it impossible to carry out all the recommendations.

The Springfield investigation disclosed that 127 cases [families] on relief were receiving funds from private employment, 134 were on WPA in addition to receiving direct relief, and that 77 cases should be dropped for a variety of other reasons. In addition to these, 312 cases were recommended removed from the rolls because the persons involved failed to answer a summons for investigation sent out by the IERC staf.

Asks Restitution of Funds.

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, reported that he had written to overseers of the poor in all of the local governing bodies that the IERC has investigated asking them what attempts they have made to secure restitution of funds received by the relief cheaters disclosed by the IERC investigations.

Conferences of relief and WPA officials and farmers to make sure that the farmers can get enough help are being continued this spring, the IERC was told. Preliminary reports from nine counties were unanimous in stating that ample help for the farmers is available.

Mayor Kelly conferred in his office with members of his committee which is seeking funds to meet an estimated relief deficit of $14,000,000 for the balance of the year. The committee suggested that the only immediate way for the city to raise additional funds would be through new license fees and increases in present fees.

TWO CHICAGOANS DISBARRED FROM LEGAL PRACTICE

Two Chicago attorneys were disbarred yesterday by the Illinois Supreme court on the motion of the Chicago Bar association, acting as commissioners of the court.

Julius P. Waitches was disbarred for conspiring to forge the will of James T. Kelly, known as the flophouse miser because he died in apparent poverty in a Madison street lodging house, but left an estate of $140,000. Waitches, who lives at 2 East 103d place, and three others were sentenced to jail for their part in the conspiracy.

David Patlak was disbarred for embezzlement from clients of the Home Owners Loan corporation, with which he formerly was connected. Patlak pleaded insanity at the time of his arrest. The high court held that his subsequent conduct has proved him unfit to practice law.

FOUND DAZED IN PARK; DIES.

John Surriani, 50 years old, a tailor, who was found semi-conscious in Grant Park Thursday night, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. He lived at 1416 North Clark street. Physicians said death was due to apoplexy.

CROWING COCKS AND GUNS UNDER WAUKEGAN'S BAN

Crowing roosters and the discharge of firearms have been illegal in Waukegan since early yesterday morning when the city council ended a six hour meeting to consider revision of the ordinance code.

The council voted 8 to 6 against banning the sale of fireworks in Waukegan, arguing that Waukeganites would merely purchase their supply from roadside stands and deprive local merchants of the business. An ordinance suggested by Ald. Thomas McCann which provided for the discharge of married women employés of the city and forbade city hiring of relatives of elective officials or receiving of bids from contractors related to elective officials also was turned down.

The council is now half way through its task of revising the city's 100 ordinances.

STATE SUPREME COURT REVERSES PENSION RULING

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield, in a decision yesterday, prohibited the Circuit courts in the state from making old age assistance awards. The high court held that the state department of public welfare, through the bureau of old age assistance, has the sole right to determine who shall receive the pensions.

The Supreme court ruled on an appeal from a decision by the Macon county Circuit court which had ordered the superintendent of OAA, John Weigle, to grant John Borreson of Decatur a pension of $24 a month. The Supreme court upheld the lower court last December, but reversed itself yesterday.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Louis Wilhelm and Leon Staley, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary; James Watson, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail; Joseph Frieri and William Frieri, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

VICTIM NAMES 3 HELD AS SO. SIDE RAPIST-ROBBERS

Three men, two of whom are ex-convicts, were identified at the Stockyards police station yesterday as rapists and robbers. They are David Burke, 4818 Princeton avenue; Andrew Barrett, 4547 Emerald avenue, and John Fox, 311 West 47th street.

All were seized a short time after Miss Elsie Ekenberg, 43 years old, 5726 Wentworth avenue, was attacked and robbed Thursday night under the Pennsylvania railroad viaduct at 55th street and Normal boulevard. Miss Ekenberg and a watchman who saw the men running away made the identifications.

ROBBER GETS 1 TO 20 YEARS.

Hillsboro, Ill., April 15.—[Special.]—Raymond Frank, 26 years old, of Nokomis, admitted today he had robbed the Blue Danube café at Litchfield Jan. 14. Judge Thomas M. Jett gave him one to twenty years at the Chester penitentiary.

PRISON DODGER HELD TO JURY ON BURGLARY COUNT

Patrick McNamara, who has never been in a penitentiary despite seventeen arrests since 1908 for felonies, was held for the grand jury yesterday in bond of $10,000 on a burglary charge by Judge John J. Rooney in Felony court. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilber F. Crowley said that when McNamara comes to trial this time he will insist on a penitentiary sentence.

McNamara, who is 53 years old, was arrested last Sunday in the plant of the Lindberg Engineering company, 221 North Laflin street, by Sergt Patrick McNamara, who is no relation. The sergeant said the other Patrick was about to leave with a number of valuable tools.

Judge Rooney regarded the McNamara record, a full page, typed single spaced, with amazement. He then asked the prisoner if he wanted it read. "I guess it's all there," McNamara said. On all previous occasions he has been freed, fined, or sent to the bridewell.

Vice President Gives Easter Basket to Girl, 6

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—Vice President John N. Garner today presented an Easter basket, featuring a fuzzy white bunny, to Alberta Mary Barnes, 6 years old. He made the contribution on behalf of the Good Samaritans, Inc. This organization distributed 600 baskets to capital children.

WILHELM GIVEN WIDOW'S RICHES BY HIGH COURT

August A. Wilhelm, who danced divinely in night clubs with elderly widows, one of whom he married, appeared to be the winner yesterday in the fight for the $350,000 estate of Mrs. Mary Scully Fagan Wilhelm. The two were married when she was in her seventies and he in his late thirties. Mrs. Wilhelm died in 1933, four months after the wedding.

Fifteen nieces and nephews contested a deed which conveyed her estate to her young husband. A jury before Judge Grover C. Niemeyer last May dismissed their claim. They appealed to the State Supreme court.

Meanwhile, through a legal error, Wilhelm got possession of the estate which was being held in escrow. The error was corrected and he returned the money. Yesterday the Supreme court upheld the verdict dismissing the claim of Mrs. Wilhelm's relatives.

RADIO'S SEQUEL TO 'SNOW WHITE' A LAUGH MAKER

Rudy Vallee Presents His View of Princess.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Rudy Vallee's dramatic sequel to Walt Disney's picture, showing a scene from the life of "Snow White" and "Prince Charming" on their third wedding anniversary, was really a honey. For those who missed it: Snow White comes down to breakfast and finds Prince Charming reading the morning paper. "Can't you see I'm busy?" he growls as she endeavors to attract his interest.

They quarrel and the prince says, "Why don't you go back to the dwarfs?"

"A good idea," the princess exclaims and sets about packing her trunks. At this juncture two of the dwarfs arrive and get a rebuff from the prince.

"You don't have to be nice to me," the princess snivels, "but you could be nice to my friends."

The dwarfs have come to offer felicitations on the third anniversary [and Prince Charming, of course, has forgotten that this is the day. And so on to her announcement to her husband that she is to have a baby and his exclamation, in Fred Allen style, "Why doesn't some one tell me these things?"

But despite this sad third anniversary, Rudy Vallee revealed, they did live happily ever afterward and had three children, Richard the Lion-Hearted, Huckleberry Finn, and Shirley Temple!

On the same program Maurice Evans, the British Shakespearean actor, contributed a magnificent portrait of Henry VIII.

Raymond Scott, composer of "Twilight in Turkey," "Power House," and other modernistic compositions, has turned out a new one he calls "Sliding Down the Kilocycles to Columbia Square," which will be introduced in connection with dedication of the new CBS Hollywood plant on April 30.

Kelly to Name 2 School Board Members by Apr. 25

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he will appoint two new members of the board of education before the city council meeting on April 25. Vacancies on the board have existed since the deaths of William H. Bied and Charles W. Fry. Civic organizations and women's clubs have recommended many candidates.

Are you worried about your son's lack of progress in his business? Maybe he will never make a success of his work until he improves his ability through study and training for a better job at better money. Trained men, who can deliver what is required, are always at a premium.

If you want to help your son, spend a few minutes tomorrow looking over the Tribune Educational Directory. In it you will find announcements of many schools offering courses in specialized fields under competent instructors and at reasonable rates.

Chicago Gets Ready to Wear Its Finest Togs

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHETHER the Easter parade on Michigan avenue tomorrow is the colorful one that the season's fashions indicate it should be depends some on the weather. But rain or shine there will be veritable fashions shows in all the churches, for all in social circles worship on Easter Sunday. If Easter were earlier in the season it might be that a wet day would bring out dark winter clothes, but since it is mid-April it is probable that spring clothes will be worn whatever the weather.

Casino club members are delighted that the club has planned a party for tomorrow because it gives them a destination for their strolling after church. In their best Easter clothes well over a hundred men and women will assemble in the smart club in East Delgware place around 1 o'clock, for there is to be music by a Hungarian string ensemble from 1 to 4, cocktails at 1 and luncheon at 1:30 o'clock.

Number to Have Parties at Club.

Mrs. Frank Hibbard, president, and Mr. Hibbard will be hosts at one teble, and among others who will have parties are the Huntington Henrys, Mrs. Jacob Baur, the Tiffany Blakes, the Cyrus Hills, the Charles Doweys, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams, Mrs. William K. Kenly, Mrs. Charles K. Foster, and Robert F. Carr.

As a suggestion for Easter luncheon or dinner perhaps it would be interesting to know what those who attend the Casino's Easter party will be served, so here is the menu: Soft shell crabs and cucumbers with sour cream dressing, roast baby lamb, peas, and new potatoes, a mixed spring salad with cheese, chocolate soufflé with marshmallow sauce, or orange ice with crushed strawberries, and coffee.

The Saddle and Cycle club is having its Easter party tonight, a dinner-dance, for which there have been so many reservations that it is probable that the party will be one of the largest and gayest of the season at the club.

Mrs. William H. Bush, the Hughston McBains, the Solomon B. Smiths, Mr. and Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Earl Kribben, the Robert Stevensons, the Thomas Underwoods, the junior Secor Cunninghams, the John Roots, the Louis Sudlers, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers, the Benson Dushanes, the young John V. Farwells, the Gaylord Donnelleys, and Fielding Marshall are some of those who have fairly large tables reserved.

Church Guilds Will Hold Sales Today.

No doubt residents of Lake Forest and Winnetka have been waiting until today to buy some of their Easter presents because the Woman's Guild of Christ Episcopal church in Winnetka and the Parish Guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest are having sales all day.

"Springtime in Brittany" is the name the Woman's Guild of Christ church has chosen for its sale to be held in the auditorium of the parish house. The auditorium has been decorated to resemble a market square. Mrs. Hobart Young, who is the chairman for the sale, has arranged to have luncheon and tea served at gay tables in the three cafés which have been constructed along the walls of the auditorium. Mrs. Ralph Rockwood is in charge of the tea.

Among the features of the sale each year are the tables set by the guild with the linens that are made by members of the parish. Mrs. George H. Musselman is in charge of the sale of Easter flowers and Mrs. Wyndham H. Channer will be at the head of the cake and cookie department. Some of the other articles that will be for sale are children's clothes, aprons, oil cloth doilies, flower pots, trays and utility baskets made from plywood. The hours for the sale are from 10 o'clock until 6 o'clock.

Lake Forest Sale on Western Avenue.

The Lake Forest sale will be held on Western avenue, with Mrs. Lithgow Mitchell, president of the guild, in charge. The decorations will consist of tables set with gayly colored paper tablecloths and loaded down with the Easter eggs, flowers, and cookies and cakes that will be for sale from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. Taylor Strawn and Mrs. Frank Priebe have been in charge of assembling the plants and flowers. Laurance H. Armour, Philip D. Armour, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Dexter Cummings, and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton are a few among the many who are contributing flowers from their greenhouses.

Mrs. Winston Elting is in charge of the sale of the Easter eggs and Mrs. Garrit M. Bax will preside over the cake and pastry table. Mrs. Robert McDonald is to be in charge of the balloons and the grab bag for children, and Mrs. Wirt Morton will look after the sale of sandwiches and coffee at lunch and tea time. The candy table is being arranged by Mrs. Maurice Bent.

Dozens of mothers and fathers along the north shore will give up their usual Saturday afternoon recreations this week to watch their young daughters dance in a recital at the Evanston Woman's club.

Home for Easter Parade

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

One of the few debutantes of next season who are in Chicago to join the Easter parade is Miss Elizabeth Crawford, for most of the others are away at school. She has returned from a Caribbean cruise taken after she had a bad attack of flu, which necessitated her leaving school at Ward-Belmont in Nashville, Tenn. The David A. Crawfords will give a tea in November for their daughter and a dinner-dance for her later in the winter.

Favor "Bobby" Strap? Well, Look at Chin!

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Girls, if you must wear one of the chin-strapped chapeaux, for goodness sake have or get the chin for it.

If ever you needed the chinline without a blemish it is when you sail forth with one of the "bobby" straps. If you haven't the chin pass up the hat until next season. By that time the style will be out, anyway, and you'll be just as well off, maybe.

Nothing is more ludicrous than a plumpish-chinned darling led into believing she belongs with one of the under-chin bows. They are to be seen about and you must laugh in spite of the way you were brought up. We still are smiling over one rolypoly, double-chinned femme seen with the hat strap swallowed in chin folds.

But you are at perfect liberty to picture yourself as a hat-strap wearer. Imagine yourself in one. Even try one on just to get acquainted with the actual state of your chin contour. You'll find out in a hurry.

Up will go the chin in self-defense, and that's a good thing. Lift it out of the head-slumping dumps and you are on your way to a nobler chinline. As has been said before repeatedly, more chins lose their beauty lolling on breastbones than are lost because of age or even fat. Get it up! Make it stay up! Not up in the air, but UP where is belongs.

Then maybe you'll need to do a little more streamlining. Goodness knows you do want to take your chin out and show it off as a young, well sculptured thing. Those well known ads aren't fooling the people about the age that's lent by lazy chins. None knows their truth better than the one of us who gets a good look in a mirror frankly and brutally lighted.

Go after the chin. Discipline it. Remold it. Next year, instead of chin straps, they may be hanging charms off the chinline. Anything can happen in the mad fashion world.

Carmichael, Hutchins Debate Purposes of Modern University

Divergent answers to the question, "What Is an Education?" were given last night at the University of Chicago by Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the institution, and Dr. Oliver Cromwell Carmichael, chancellor of Vanderbilt university. They spoke before an audience of 1,200 in Mandel hall.

Dr. Hutchins maintained his thesis that intellectual development should be fostered by the study of fundamental intellectual problems, and not by vocational studies.

Dr. Carmichael took the position that a university should serve the region in which it is located. "The conclusion is inescapable," he said, "that provision should be made in the university program for research in current problems, for bringing students into contact with professors who are studying these problems in the concrete."

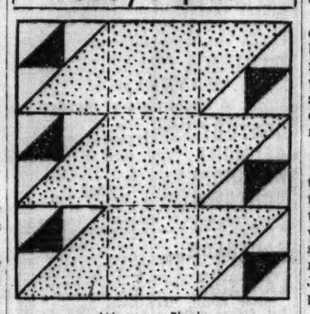
Today's Quilt



Wampum Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

While the material manufacturers do not welcome statements about patterns which serve as admirable designs for utilizing pieces in the scrapbag, "Wampum Block" is just such a one. When making the quilt of new materials, select red, yellow, and white material, and set 120 blocks together to form an all-over design. When each pieced pattern is of a different material, creating a variety of patterns throughout the coverlet, either all print, all plain materials, or a combination of both may be used. The blocks which are made of three colors are set together to form zigzag stripes the full length of the coverlet, and a one-half inch bias binding serves as the border.

Church Crowds Mark Death of Christ on Cross

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The sacrificial drama of the death of Christ on the cross was extended realistically across the 19 centuries throughout Chicago churches yesterday. Many downtown theaters also were crowded during noontime hours where special Good Friday services were held.

Typical of most Catholic churches, Holy Name cathedral was filled with worshipers from noon until 3 o'clock, traditional hours of the agony of Christ. The Tre Ore devotions were led by the Rev. Edwin V. Dailey of the cathedral staf. For benefit of loop workers unable to attend midday Tre Ore services, St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, and St. James church, 2942 South Wabash avenue, held services from 6 to 9 at night.

The largest Holy week crowds in years at Harris theater became almost overflowing yesterday when Bishop George Craig Stewart closed the Episcopal Church club noon day Lenten series there.

"Get under the cross yourself," was Bishop Stewart's challenge to that congregation.

"The crucifixion of Jesus Christ is being repeated today on a vast scale," said Bishop Stewart. "I do not mean merely Russia and Germany. I do not merely mean the crucifixion of the church which is being persecuted by Cæsarism in Europe and Asia and mocked in many places in America.

"I mean something more personal, I mean you and me. We have not followed in His steps. We have not taken the cross. We have not crucified the flesh. We have not shared His passion. We have not kept our baptismal vows. I hope that we at least admit that we are sinners and that we can creep under that prayer of His on the cross, 'Father forgive them!'"

The Rev. Dr. Herbert L. Willett of Kenilworth emphasized the same need of forgiveness as he spoke before a congregation which filled Chicago Temple, 77 West Washington street, for the three hours' devotions. This service was conducted by the Chicago Church federation.

"The first word uttered by Christ, of those that are recorded as spoken by Him on the cross, was this one of forgivenness, spoken of those who were bringing Him to His death," said Dr. Willett. "That was the disclosure of His entire message and ministry."

The Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of Chicago Temple, speaking at the same service, declared that the two thieves crucified with Christ were not what we generally understand by the word thief. They were not robbers. They were noble-souled Jews fighting against corrupt Roman politicians.

"I am glad that Christ ignored the politicians and treated them with silent contempt and harkened to the prayer of that noble rebel," said Dr. Thompson.

Overlook the Small Faults of Growing Boy

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"You say one way to smooth out some of the many rough spots in managing my 12 year old son is to overlook as many as possible of the trying things he does. What are some of the things that can be overlooked?" asks a slightly bewildered parent.

When your children leave young childhood behind them and before they get well into adolescense there comes a time which, though full of fun and the joy of life to them, is apt to be pretty trying to their parents. Advice and admonition fall on deaf ears. Things aren't done that should be. Things are done that shouldn't.

Some of this can't be changed—it has to be outgrown. So, your cue is to do your best, and then overlook all you can that is not essential.

So, as our last article in this series on the 10, 11, 12, and 13 year olds, here are some definite suggestions as to what may be, to a large degree, overlooked:

1. Their aversion to washing. Expect them to get clean periodically [and under protest, probably] but not to keep clean.

2. Their utter indifference to dress and grooming. Stocking down, knicker unbuckled and looking like a too-long plus-four, shirt tail out—these will be the order of the day. Other once-a-day or twice-a-day inspection, overlook these vagaries.

3. Their forgetfulness and heedlessness.

4. Their blissful ignorance that they have omitted what we might call the niceties of etiquet. A jogging or reminding is the best you can do.

5. Their short lived enthusiasm for hobbies or other interests. Each one has its value and any one may prove to be a life work.

6. Their apparent little childishness. They will, too soon, mature and be grownup.

These and other temporary ways of this age you will overlook. Essentials you never forget to foster: character qualities, right feeling toward those a child loves, desirable attitudes in general, and the nurturing of any special talent.

Feast of Passover Starts Celebration of Jewish Deliverance

The seder or passover meal, of deep meaning to Jews throughout all ages, was observed in Jewish homes of Chicago and in many temples as world Jewry at sundown last night began its eight day celebration of the nation's deliverance from Egyptian bondage.

Wine, matzos or unleavened bread, bitter herbs, and other symbolic foods were on all seder tables as ancient rituals were read. Typical of all seders was that held at the Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged, 1648 South Albany avenue, which was arranged for residents there by Julius Savitt, director of the home.

The ritual was led by Joseph Rutkin, 90 years old, oldest resident of the home, as demanded by tradition. Others taking leading parts were Joseph Perlman, 80, who also celebrated his birthday yesterday; Pincues Klein, 77; Max Cohen, 86; Mrs. Rutkin, 87; Mrs. Yetta Horwitz, 78, and Mrs. Clara Shaffner, who is 70.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes.

Hollywood, Cal., April 15.—Monte Blue, presiding as toastmaster at the banquet of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Beverly Hills, gave a very charming introduction to Bob Burns.

Bob Burns makes good speech.

Blue recalled that the unofficial mayor of Beverly Hills had been Will Rogers' friend and pointed out that while nobody ever would take Rogers' place, Bob Burns had appeared at the moment when the country missed most the homespun philosophy of Rogers.

It was really a grand introduction, for Blue stressed the fact that Burns was not an imitator, but had scored on his own individuality.

Burns measured up to the introduction: "Naturally, a lot of folks have mentioned my name in connection with that of Will," he said, "but there was only one of him and there never will be another. Some day when the monument to Will is completed I'll be mighty grateful if just the shadow of his monument reaches and touches the little stone under which they'll put me to rest."

"When Rogers died," said Burns, "a lot of professional weepers got on radio programs and told the country how close they had been to him. They rehersed the weeping in the studios in the afternoon, so that they could weep better on the air that night. I've always felt a little better because I didn't try to cash in on acquaintanceship with Will Rogers.

"It's not generally known, but I worked with him in a picture at the Fox studios. I had a year's contract at Fox for $300 a week, and after playing club dates for $5 a throw that contract for $300 was the finest thing that ever happened to me, one of those bits of good luck that happen to a man once in a lifetime.

"At the end of the year they didn't pick up my option, and I felt mighty blue about it. I had an offer to play a week in Los Angeles for $80, but I was afraid to accept it for fear that the booking agents would consider me thereafter as an $80 a week act. So I talked to Will Rogers about it. He was making 'State Fair' at the time.

"I went up to him, and I asked him for some advice, and I told him how I felt, that I didn't want to cheapen myself as an act. 'Bob,' he said to me, 'they ain't picked up your option, so don't worry about cheapening yourself. The idea in this business of ours or any other business is never to stop working. I played the Palace one week in New York, and they gave me $1,000 for the week. My agent couldn't set the next three days for me, so I went up in the Bronx and I played three days for $125. A lot of actors would lay off those three days, but not me. I know actors who have laid off so long, waiting for what they consider their salary rate, that they ain't worked since Lincoln's Gettysburg address.'

"So I went home and told my wife what Will Rogers said, and I guess that's why I'm here today—because I've just kept on a-workin', doing the best I could and taking whatever money I could git. So long as you're workin' you ain't cheapening yourself. Rogers was dead right!"

The Basooka Buzzard told of his first experience trying to land a picture job: "The man at the gate looked at me and said: 'Sorry, we're not casting for types today. When I need an old man's type I'll call for you.' I said to him: 'Mister, I ain't old enough to play old men's parts,' and this fellow said to me: 'You will be by the time I call for you.'"

W. C. Fields, Groucho Marx, Bob Hope, Ken Murray, Jack Benny, Burns and Allen and a lot of the top-flight comics were at our house the other night for a spaghetti dinner. Joe Leone was in town from New York and I refused to let him leave the Los Angeles city limits until he had cooked up an Italian dinner. It really was terrific.

Fields was telling of the piece of comedy business which George Burns had given him in "International House," and couldn't get over it. "This young fellow gave me a great piece of material," he said, "and it was something new in my experience. In the Ziegfeld days Flo would dump five comics into a show, and from then on its was a cat-and-dog fight, and the devil take the hindmost. If I told a joke Ed Wynn would be doing something to distract the attention of the audience, and if Wynn tried to score Leon Errol would try to kill the gag by limping around the stage. After every show you'd go to your dressing room and take the knives out of your back."

Most of the top-ranking comics are insatiable readers. Fields, Bergen, Fred Allen, Groucho Marx, Ed Wynn—all of these will startle you with the length, breadth and depth of their literary knowledge. Those who believe that comedians read only Joe Miller are naïve, to put it mildly.

It was from the "History of the Alamo" that Fields plucked one of his most hilarious lines and transplanted it to "Mississippi." I'll let W. C. explain it: "I was reading this book and the woman author of it very seriously told how the frontiersmen, after firing their guns and being unable to reload, whipped out their bowie knives and carved their way through walls of human flesh. The image conjured up in my mind was hilarious. In 'Mississippi,' therefore, as the lying boat captain, I used the phrase about cutting my way through a wall of human flesh. The audience, knowing that I was a liar, got a great kick out of it. The point, however, is that a comedian's greatest laughs come from serious writings. You've got to read, in self-defense."

Fields avers that Flo Ziegfeld had no "feel" for comedy. "I remember in one 'Follies' when Wynn was telling a joke. Just as he got to the point Errol reached out and pinched Wynn's cheeks, killing the gag. Wynn went to Ziggie and raged about Errol, but Ziegfeld didn't do anything about it. The next night, after Errol had pinchd Wynn's cheeks several times, Wynn pulled out a catcher's mask and put it on. The audience howled.

"So the following night, Errol, to spoil Wynn's laugh, refused to pinch his face. Wynn thereupon went to Ziggie and raged that Errol wouldn't pinch his face.

"'Two nights ago you were squawking that Errol PINCHED your cheeks,' stormed Flo, 'now you are raging that he DOESN'T pinch your cheeks. I think you're crazy. Get away from me.'"

Good Morning!

"The Rat" is a Parisian underworld drama running true to the form of most of its class. Which fact doesn't interfere with its entertainment value, for the picture is brisk, suspenseful and well acted.

The leads are in capable hands. Ruth Chatterton, who somehow or other has acquired a necessary finish and sincerity during her long absence from the screen, has an important rôle. Anton Walbrook, so splendid as the prince consort in "Victoria, the Great," puts a lot of spice into his playing of the title rôle.

Rene Ray, the persecuted virgin of the story—these Parisian yarns always have one of such—is properly naïve, frightened and gallant besides having a certain appealing prettiness. Supporting villains, police, Apaches, ladies of the night—only, Mama, they are NOT ladies!—are convincingly portrayed.

As for the plot:

A man condemned to die sends for "The Rat"—a jewel thief, whom the police have never been able to imprison. They know who he is and where to find him, but just CAN'T get the goods on him. One reason being that the ladies he robs fall for his charm and refuse to identify him as the thief when he's paraded before them. . . .

"'The Rat,'" says the condemned man, "NEVER lets anybody down."

To this most honorable scoundrel, then, he who is about to die confides his seventeeen year old daughter, Odile . . . "The Rat" promises never to lay a hand on her, nor to permit any other man to do so.

This strange guardian's romance with a certain wealthy Madame Zelia, and the attempt of Zelia's cast off suitor—a rich South American—to gain the pretty Odile, lead to murder and subsequent melodramatic howdy-do that climaxes in a mighty exciting day in court.

See picture for finale.

Backgrounds are atmospheric, dialog's arresting and direction was excellent.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The black lipstick we told you about not long ago has arrived. Very handsome case it has, too, dead black with silver trim. A swivel operates it and the sight of the coal black stick popping out is plenty startling. The men in your life will fall over in a dead faint, laugh their heads off, or bawl the blazes out of you, depending on their natures. It's absolutely guaranteed to provoke a definite masculine reaction of one sort or another.

But the joke is on them, because the black stick gives the lips a red coat, and a beautiful red coat at that. There are two shades, both of them lovely reds, one a claret shade and one darkish. One of the big features is that the stuff practically doesn't come off. It sticks like mad.

This lip rouge that is black in the stick but wonderfully and richly red on the lips is a French product, as you might expect. We feel it's carrying that noted French love for black pretty far, but after all, it's fun and once you get past the shock of the coal black stick you've got a lovely scarlet coat for your lips.

You'll pay well for this fun; the stick is a costly one. But you'd be surprised at how many women are buying them. They're the women who like to be a bit startling and who're willing to pay for the privilege.

The big talking point of this is really its indelibility, not its blackness. It really does stay on for hours and hours and, after it dries, doesn't come off on linen, glasses, or [politicians please note] the faces of babies you kiss! ELEANOR NANGLE.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

OUT ON BOND.

The chief was a well built soldierly man in middle life. Gordon liked his looks.

Old Jasper explained the circumstances.

After verifying them by the testimony of the others present the chief said he thought Stone had better go with him to the district attorney. "As a formality," he added. "I can't see you were to blame in any way."

Driscoll did not quite take the same point of view. Already he had been in telephone conversation with Gilbert.

"What was Stone doing at the Longhorn club?" he asked waspishly. "He's not a member. Everybody knows Lyn Gilbert drops in there afternoons. How do we know he wasn't waiting there to get Lyn?"

"Gilbert didn't lose any time getting to you, did he?" Gordon drawled. "A telephone is sure handy when you're in a rush."

"That's my business," the district attorney countered. "I'm telling you that I'm not satisfied with your story. Looks to me as if you egged Webb on to draw."

"Unimportant to me what you think," Stone said indifferently. "I expect Gilbert's hired men to think what he puts in their mouths."

"You're all swelled up like a poisoned pup, aren't you?" rapped Driscoll. "Want everybody to be afraid of you. Well, I'm not. I'll treat you the same as I would treat any other criminal who comes before me."

"Alleged criminal," corrected Gordon gently.

"I've been there before." The satiric smile on Gordon's face did not reach his cold eyes.

"You're making a mistake, Driscoll," the chief told the other official. "I have looked into this business. Talked with Pinckney, Venner, Carson, and the club attendant. They all tell the same story. It's an open and shut case of self-defense."

"I'll expect you to hold this man a prisoner," Driscoll said arrogantly. "When I'm ready to have you free him I'll let you know."

"I'll hold him until his bond is fixed anyhow. If you want him held longer you will have to file the proper papers and get the court to refuse bond."

"Didn't I tell you to stay away from that old fox?" he sputtered. "You're so dog-goned bull-headed you've got to go ram-stamming off to play a lone hand. . . . I'll be right in soon as I can get there."

John Fleming brought with him to town three other stockmen from the Kettle Hill district. Landers was one of them. The remaining two owned the Triangle V and the Box Open A brands. All of them were men of first class reputation, though their combined holdings in land and beef were less than half as much as those of Gilbert. They were out in the open at last. The fight of Gordon Stone was their fight. They had come to go bond for the prisoner and they knew that the owner of the Bar B B would regard it as a personal affront. If he won out in this struggle, as he had often done before, he would see it cost them plenty.

The Kettle Hill men found Gilbert in the chambers of the judge when they went to apply for bond. The district attorney was also there.

Fleming glared at his old foe and fired the first broadside. "Better let that boy of mine alone, Lyn," he snarled. "He won't leave you any killers unless you dryguich him."

"We'll cut out talk of that sort, Mr. Fleming," said Judge McMurdo severely. "I presume you're here on business. If not——"

"I'm here to get my boy outa the calaboose, judge," old John said defiantly. "Any objections?"

"I haven't heard of any, if you are prepared to put up bond," the judge said with dignity.

"How much?"

"A merely nominal sum. Two thousand dollars."

Fleming was surprised. This was too easy. He grew suspicious. "What's the catch, Gilbert?" he demanded.

"Always looking for the nigger in the woodpile, aren't you, John?" the Bar B B man jeered.

"Lyn, you're crooked as the hind leg of a coyote," the Kettle Hill rancher hurled back at him.

"If I hear any more of this kind of talk I'll refuse bond," McMurdo said sharply.

Fleming glared bleakly at him. "I'm through, judge. Nothing to say to Lyn I haven't told him before."

The papers were made out.

"We've got the old scalawag on the run," Fleming exulted jubilantly. "Lyn wanted to hold you but he didn't have the guts. He was scared the town would get up on its hind legs about it."

Gordon was not so sure about that. He wondered whether he had not been turned loose because Gilbert wanted him free. If so, why?

Karen sat on the porch of the Bar B B ranch house reading the Courier. Her eyes were racing through a front page story, one with a seven column head. It was an account of the killing of Webb at the Longhorn club. The news shocked her and set the blood in her veins strumming with excitement.

Obviously Webb had been the aggressor and had forced Gordon Stone to shoot in self-defense. Karen was deeply glad her friend had come through unhurt, yet was greatly disturbed at what had occurred. It showed how determined his enemies were to destroy him. Moreover, she was afraid of the effect of this encounter on Gordon. Of late he had been growing less hard and bitter. But one who kills has the mark of Cain stamped on him. In the thoughts of those about him he is set apart from others. Karen did not want him driven back inside himself. She wished she could get word to him that she was on his side now more than ever.

A rider of the Bar B B was sitting in front of the bunk house mending a stirrup lether. Probably he was there to keep an eye on her and see she did not wander too far. The man was Parke Rogers, the youngster who had signed and later repudiated a confession of rustling J F stock.

He came to the house to get some rivets. Searching through the tool chest on the porch, he seemed to have difficulty in finding what he wanted. Karen became aware that his skim milk eyes drifted her way more than once.

Not until he was passing her on the way back to the bunk house did he find courage to speak. "Kinda mosey down my way, careless like, and stop to talk," he muttered out of the corner of his weak mouth.

Karen was interested, not in the man but in his suggestion. This did not sound like an entering wedge for anything of a flirtatious nature.

Presently she rose, stepping down from the porch, and wandered slowly in the direction of the bunk house.

pointed junior Wightman cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association will meet with the chairman, Frank D. Fulton. The committee—there are similar ones in five other sections of the country—will consider claims for tryouts for the Wightman cup team and to promote tennis among women.

On the Chicago committee are Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. and her cousin, Mrs. John P. Bent; Mrs. Howard V. O'Brien, Miss Helen Fulton, Mrs. W. A. Pennington, Mrs. Burnham Fisk, Miss Josephine Otter, Miss Virginia Winston, Mrs. Herbert S. Biedler, Miss Helen Bartavis, Joseph F. Forbrich, W. Watson Tobin, and Chester C. Johnson.

At today's luncheon plans will be made for the entertainment of Alice Marble, No. 1 ranking United States player, and her coach, Eleanor Tennant, who will be in Chicago April 26, 27, and 28.

Consul Weiller Will Be Luncheon Guest.

The Alliance Française will give a luncheon at 1 o'clock today at the Arts club for René Weiller, consul for France in Chicago, and Mme. Weiller. Mrs. Orville J. Taylor and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey are in charge of arrangements.

This morning, Henri David, director of the lectures of the Alliance Française and professor at the University of Chicago, will talk in the library of the alliance.

Miss Helen Riordan is giving a luncheon today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Riordan of Lake Shore drive, for her cousin, Anne Curry, who is at home from Carleton college for the Easter holidays.

The first of many prenuptial parties for Miss Jane Emery, whose wedding to Bradford Eben will take place on May 12, will be a supper party which Miss Gertrude Barrett will give tomorrow night at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles Barrett, in Hawthorne place.

English Couple Guests in City.

Two English visitors who will witness Chicago's Easter parade are Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Gaunt, who are arriving today to stay until Wednesday with the Norman Ibsens.

Mrs. Gaunt, the former Betty Dawson, an English school friend of Mrs. Ibsen [Mira Lee Benist], has visited here before. On her last visit Mrs. Gaunt saw most of the eastern part of the country, so she and her husband hope to go to California on this trip.

Their decision to come to the United States was a sudden one. The dinner the Ibsens are giving Monday night to celebrate their wedding anniversary will be made doubly gay by the presence of their English friends.

Another event to make the Easter week-end a memorable one for the Ibsens will be the christening tomorrow afternoon of tiny Madeleine Gillies Mackenzie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie of Winnetka, for the Ibsens are to be godmother and godfather. Madeleine will be the sixth generation in her father's family to wear a delicate Irish linen and lace christening robe which was sent to her by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Henry Wallace Mackenzie, from New Zealand.

Mrs. Ernest Roessler is to be the baby's other godmother. Mrs. Mackenzie's mother, Mrs. James P. Gillies, is coming from Rye, N. Y., next week for a visit.

Washburne Family to Hold Reunion.

The annual Easter gathering of the Washburne clan will be held at the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. Hempstead Washburne Jr. at luncheon tomorrow. The Gratiot Washburnes and the Clarke Washburnes, who had the party last year, and their two youngest sons, Brenton and Theodore, will be there, but the three older boys have returned to their studies after a pre-Easter motor trip south with their parents.

Dr. Annette Washburne, whose home is in Madison, will be missing this year, for she is holidaying in California.

D. A. R. to Hear Mrs. Redheffer.

Mrs. Raymond Redheffer, who has just returned from the west coast, where she had been lecturing, is leaving today for Washington to address the Daughters of the American Revolution at the opening of their convention Monday. "Capitalism and Democracy" is the subject of Mrs. Redheffer's talk.

Mrs. Redheffer, who lectures as Dr. Ruth Alexander, will return from Washington immediately after her talk Monday, and will spend the next few days moving her family into a new apartment at 257 East Delaware place. The first of May Mrs. Redheffer will become Dr. Alexander again and start on the last lap of her lecture tour, which will keep her traveling until the middle of June.

Mrs. S. Edwin Earle and Mrs. Frank E. Fuller left yesterday by motor for Washington to attend the convention.

The Housewife

For orange juice and tomato juice addicts manufacturers have invented some artistic glassware. These new glasses copy the shape of an orange or a tomato. The glass has an interesting texture, too, that slightly resembles an orange skin.

Then, to complete the picture, you sip the tomato or orange juice through little glass straws that are either red or orange, depending on your choice. A tray of these glasses, with their gay "straws," makes a charming picture. Your guests will exclaim over these novel individual servers. They're most reasonably priced.

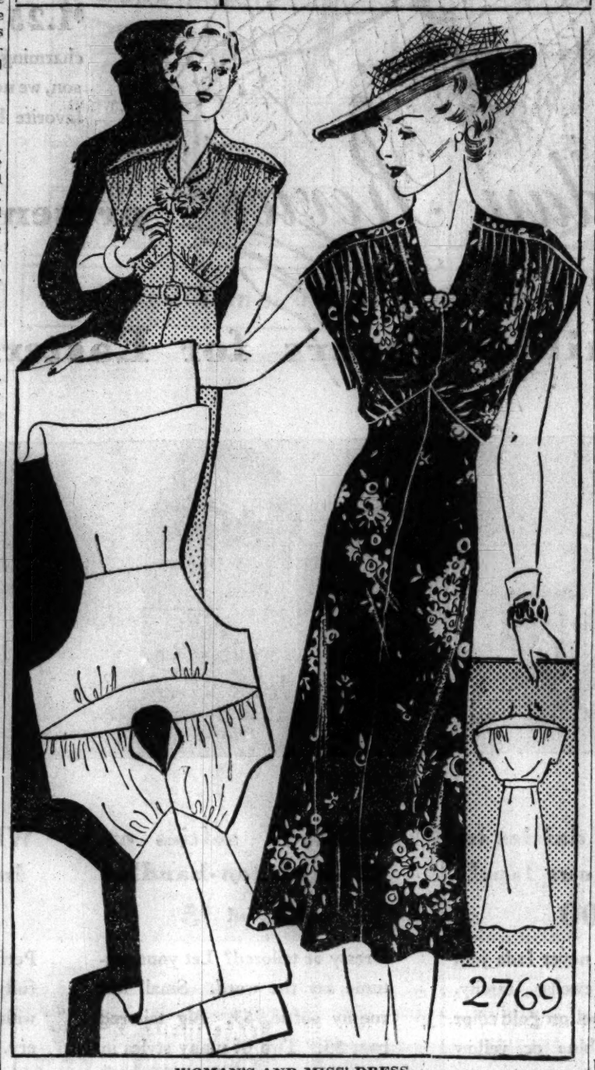
Cool, Crisp Summertime Chic



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Cool, crisp smartness for summer days is provided by this pattern, which prescribes dark sheers. Everything about the dress is designed to unite comfort with chic, and the result is a dress which may go to all types of informal social events. The soft lines flatter many figures, too. The V neckline is simple and may be trimmed with a pair of tiny revers or with your favorite clip. The sleeves are mere extensions of the shoulders, which are plentifully shirred. The waistline dips up into the graceful bodice. Paneling achieves fit and flare for the skirt.

You may, of course, use supple silk prints and cottons for this model. Another idea is a figured sheer.

Style No. 2769 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Former Daughter-in-Law Is Guest at White House

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Curtin Winsor of Philadelphia arrived today at the White House en route home from the south. Mrs. Winsor's young son, Donner Roosevelt, son of Elliott Roosevelt, has been staying at the White House for some time. The Winsors are expected to stay over the week-end so that young Donner may attend the children's party at the White House and the egg rolling preceding it.

Like Foreign Dishes? Here's List of Books

When company drops in unexpectedly, or after a day too busy for cooking, a booklet of recipes for canned foods comes in handy. "Pantry Shelf Dinners," by Mary Meade, is just such a booklet. It's on sale for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, or it will be mailed for 5 cents in stamps. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

Foreign cookery interests a great many readers of this column, judging from the requests we have for foreign recipes and the inquiries about foreign cookery books. Large Chicago book stores carry a good many foreign cookbooks, both in English and in other languages.

Here are the titles of a few:

Chinese cookery: "Chinese Cookbook," Culinary Arts press, Reading, Pa. [20 cents].

German Cookbooks in German, using foreign weights and measures, include "Praktisches Kochbuch," "Volks Kochbuch," and "Illustriertes Kochbuch," all by Mary Hahn [the last named contains 835 pages and sells for $4]. Lena Meier's "German Cooking and Baking" is available in English or German and is based on American weights and measures.

Scandinavian cookbooks include "Swedish Smörgasbord," by Mrs. Akerstrom-Soderstrom, and "Swedish Princesses' Cookbook," by Jenny Akerstrom. These are in English.

All these books are available in Chicago book stores, along with many others on foreign cookery.

Several readers have asked for recipes for making ravioli. Ravioli may be purchased ready-made, but here's the recipe for those who want to try this Italian paste at home:

Ravioli.

1 egg yolk
Water to make a stiff dough
¼ cup fine cracker crums
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup chopped cooked spinach
1 egg
Chicken stock
Salt, pepper
1¼ cups water
2 tablespoons flour

Sift flour onto bread board, make a depression in the center, and drop in the egg yolk. Moisten with enough warm water to make a stiff dough. Knead until the mixture is smooth, cover, and let stand for 10 minutes. Roll paper thin and cut with a pastry jagger into strips three inches wide and as long as the pastry. Mix crums, egg, and spinach. Moisten with stock and season with salt and pepper. Place the mixture by teaspoonsful on the lower half of each strip, dropping it about two inches apart. Fold the upper part of the strip over the lower part. Press pastry together along the edges and between the mixtures with the thumbs, and cut apart with pastry jagger. Drop into hot stock and cook for ten minutes. Remove to serving dish, placing the ravioli in layers with the cheese and covering with tomato sauce made by cooking tomato paste, water, and flour together until smooth and thickened.

Casserole of Macaroni and Cheese.

[Serves Six.]

1 package elbow macaroni
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups grated or sliced cheese
½ cup fine, dry crums
Butter

Cook the macaroni seven to ten minutes in four quarts of rapidly boiling, salted water. Drain. Blend butter and flour and add milk and seasonings to form a smooth sauce. Place a layer of cooked macaroni in a greased baking dish and cover with a layer of cheese, alternating macaroni and cheese until both are used. Pour the sauce over the combination, top with crums, and dot with butter. Set the dish in a pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees until thoroughly hot and well browned.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The inclosed hand, which was played in a rubber match the other night, just goes to show what a hoax play on the part of the defenders may do to a guy who apparently has a laydown for a grand slam. I sat South. The following was the deal:

"North, dealer.

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	6 spades	Pass
7 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"West opened the heart six. Dummy's ace won and East played the deuce. The hand looked like a cinch even with a bad diamond break, so to explore the diamond situation before leading a trump I led the ace from the dummy. East, without a moment's hesitation, dropped the queen. Seeing no reason for this, unless the queen were a single, I led one of dummy's small clubs, winning with the ace. I then cashed the club king. East played the deuce and then the four. Then I made the error that was my downfall. I figured that East had more clubs, for if West had held the Q-J-10-9 it would have been his best opening lead to have led the queen. Anyhow, I led the club eight and ruffed with the trump six. East overruffed and I was set.

"Sure, I know I should have ruffed a heart at trick four, and the diamonds could have been set up. The opponents hoodooed me. What do you think? Yours truly,

"LAF, Salisbury, N. C."

I am almost sorry that my correspondent asked "what do you think?" Because I hate to tell him! It is all very well for him to moan that he was hoaxed, or hoodooed, by the defenders. In actual fact, it can only be said that he hoaxed himself. When East threw the queen of diamonds on the ace there was utterly no reason for declarer's fright. Why not then lead a low diamond and put East's honesty to the test? Suppose that East did fail to follow suit. How could that harm declarer? If he ruffed declarer easily could overruff and base his subsequent play on knowledge of the diamond distribution rather than on fear. Obviously the moment both defenders followed to the second diamond trick declarer's "dilemma" would be resolved. The diamond break then could be no worse than 4-2 and one more ruff would establish the entire suit. Thus after ruffing the deuce of diamonds declarer would merely lay down the spade ace, then overtake the jack. Another low diamond lead and ruff with the king would "set the dummy." The lead of South's last spade to dummy and subsequent drawing of opponents' trumps would be child's play.

Without meaning to "rub things in" I am afraid that the defenders had very little to do with the defeat of this contract.

Institute to Hold Exhibit of Works by Robert Harshe

The late Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, was himself an artist of merit, but only a few of his intimate friends knew that he spent most of his spare time painting. A retrospective exhibit of his work will be held at the institute from April 21 to May 22.

Dr. Harshe did not exhibit while a director of the institute because he felt his official position would not allow him to place his work in competition with artists who depended on art alone for a livelihood. He made his first success in etching, later taking up water color, and still later, oil.

Omnipresence of Parents Is Love Barrier

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am up against one of the most peculiar situations in which a girl ever found herself. I am over 20 and I am ridiculously and terribly in love with a young man three years my senior. I have known him for years. So has my family, so much so that he has become like one of us. He loves me. I know that. He has told me so on the rare occasions when he has had the chance. But that's the rub.

"We rarely get a chance to be alone. I get terribly burnt up. I am so keen about the fellow and I am afraid he is going to be swallowed up by family interest. I have only one other sister, years younger, and not boy crazy one bit, so can't but believe the man comes especially to be with me. But my family is right on the job every time he shows up, and they stay on it until he takes his hat to leave.

"Of course, I can't understand why he never asks me out. He has a job and can afford to, because I am not the kind who expects a young man to spend his whole salary on me in one fling. What on earth can I do under the circumstances?

"HEARTSICK."

It would seem a good first step to take the family into your confidence. It may come as a surprise to them that you never let them in on your big secret. They can't just guess at it. They just assume that the young man likes to come to their home and they like to have him.

You might tactfully slip word to them that they could manage to be off to the movies or playing bridge with a neighbor or something next time the chap is due to arrive. Then you might get them to develop the habit of being out of sight for a few occasions. Then, when you have the stage all set and to yourself, you could slip a hint or even a suggestion that you'd just love to go somewhere and dance or see a show or something.

You have to do your share, too, to shake the chap out of the idea that you are a piece of the family furniture. You'll have to shove him out of the easy chair. He'll like you for it, because you'll be introducing something new into his life.

SOMERSAULT CAR AT CIRCUS LANDS ATOP ITS DRIVER

Beasts Fight, but as an Opener It's Good.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

A little red car, described by the Coles Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus as a breath taking somersault automobile, the most stupendous act of the spring show, outdid its billing yesterday — with a possibly serious result—when the circus opened for a two weeks' run in the Stadium. Instead of landing on its own four wheels in the promised somersault, it twice landed on top of the Great Florenzo, its driver.

Jean Allen, a circus performer. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

After the prop men had righted the tiny car at the afternoon show and pried Florenzo out of it, they found he had a dent in his steel helmet and a bruised hip.

"Just knocked for a loop," they commented, laconically.

At the evening performance, Florenzo had recovered sufficiently to try the stunt again. Again the car upset. The driver took a bow, but is to undergo an X-ray examination today.

There Are Other Fumbles.

The somersault accident was only one of a series of first-day fumbles that chilled the circus audience, yet gave a sympathetic tinge to the tense atmosphere that accompanied the hazardous exhibits.

Even Ken Maynard, cowboy hero, missed the bulls-eye when he shot from the hip lying down. And when Menelik the lion charged a snarling tiger and they rolled over and over, the cries of the crowd drowned out the flaming bark of Beatty's gun and the crack of his whip.

Spring Is a Bad Time.

"Gee," gasped a ruddy faced spectator, when the furor died down, "most of the folks don't realize that spring is a bad time for the lion act. Right now is mating season, and those jungle boys will fight at the drop of a hat!"

Not all the performers muffed their acts. The Great Gretonas bicycled blithely back and forth on a taut wire, stretched half a block into the air, above the audience, and paused long enough in the center to build a human pyramid for the doubters. A troupe of clowns were as funny as they thought they were, a herd of elephants posed like corroded bronze statues, and at least twenty-five other acts moved without a hitch.

SMASH WINDOWS OF NEWSPAPER'S OFFICE IN JOLIET

Joliet police last night were investigating a mysterious and malicious attack upon the offices of the Spectator, a weekly newspaper published there by William R. McCabe, a former state's attorney of Will county. The attack was made shortly after 1 a. m. yesterday, a few hours after the week's edition of the paper was printed.

Two men alighted from an automobile in front of the Spectator office at 113 Cass street and hurled bricks through five plate glass windows, causing damage estimated at $300.

MENOW DASHES TO VICTORY IN TEST FOR DERBY

Nears Track Record for 6 Furlongs.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 15.—Hal Price Headley named several of his best horses of the past for members of his family, but when the time came to tag the impressive looking bay colt by Pharamond II. and Alcibiades he decided the moment had arrived to honor himself, and there you have Menow.

The Kentucky breeder and sportsman, who is president of the Keeneland association and its directing force, was not mistaken in the potentialities of Menow, because the colt established himself as the champion 2 year old of 1937 and now is one of the outstanding candidates for the forthcoming Kentucky Derby, more so because of his auspicious return to competition in the Trial handicap, this afternon's feature race.

Taking up top weight of 122 pounds, which compelled him to give from ten to twenty pounds to his three rivals, Menow ran the six furlongs of the Trial handicap in 1:11 2-5, missing Myrtlewood's track record by three-fifths of a second.

Race Never in Doubt.

With Charles Kurtsinger carrying a whip but never using it, the Headley star took the lead in the opening furlong and triumphed by a length and a half over King's Heir from the Dixiana establishment. L. C. Young's Sweep Royal was another six lengths away. Mightily was fourth and last. Menow came to the last sixteenth with such a comfortable advantage over King's Heir that Kurtsinger eased him up or otherwise he would have come closer to Myrtlewood's record.

William Hamilton effected a fast start, but Menow, which acted perfectly in the stall, was beaten away by King's Heir and Sweep Royal. He was in his stride quickly and before a furlong had been covered assumed command, which gave Kurtsinger the chance to take him in hand. Menow stepped the opening quarter in :23 1-5 and the half mile in :46 2-5 to hold King's Heir safe, but when the latter was given the whip entering the stretch Kurtsinger shook up the Pharamond colt with his hands. That was all Menow required to continue on his winning way.

Recovers from Leg Injury.

In the paddock Menow was the center of an admiring and critical crowd, including many horsemen. He appeared a picture of fitness, even to his left leg, which was injured last fall as he was preparing for the Pimlico Futurity. The injury worried Owner Headley and Trainer Duval A. Headley for the best part of the winter, but after the colt had advanced in his training at Hialeah Park in Florida traces of the injury began to leave.

It is Headley's intention to race Menow into condition for the Derby and he may have another race here before his engagement in the Blue Grass stakes on April 28, final day of the Keeneland meeting.

MOUNTAIN RIDGE SHOWS SPEED IN DERBY WORKOUT

Louisville, Ky., April 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Mountain Ridge, one of the two colts she will enter in the Kentucky Derby on May 7, today turned in the best workout of the Derby training period. Mountain Ridge was clocked at the quarter in :23 2-5, the half in :47 2-5, five-eighths in 1:00 2-5, and the three-quarters in 1:13 2-5. He galloped out the mile in 1:42.

Tiger, also owned by Mrs. Mars, covered a mile in 1:42 3-5. Col. Maxwell Howard's Stagehand and The Chief worked together and were timed in :24 3-5 for the quarter and :49 for the half. Lawrin went three-quarters in 1:15 2-5, and Co-Sport went a mile in 1:48 2-5.

WHITEHEAD AND RIGNEY PROTECT EARLY MARGIN

Resume Series in Wrigley Field Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who since their loss of Luke Appling had been staggering more or less helplessly around the country, came home yesterday and proved, for the moment, that all that had been said against them wasn't true. They proved it by polishing off the Cubs in Comiskey park in the opener of the Chicago portion of their pre-season review, 5 to 4, in an engagement limited to seven and a fraction innings. Rain was the principal reason for abandoning the affair.

To attain their sixth victory over their National league enemies in fourteen games played, the Sox threw emery into the pitching machinery Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs had arranged not only for the occasion but also for the season's opener next Tuesday. The American leaguers wrecked Clay Bryant so speedily that he saw only four batters and they kept going against Tex Carleton long enough to complete their afternoon's scoring in two innings.

Today the teams will play in Wrigley field and tomorrow they will return to Comiskey park for the finale.

Rigney Dazzles Cubs.

Whereas Carleton's rescue act yesterday didn't become effective until it was too late, John Henderson Whitehead strived to show 6,000 chilled spectators that a lead is never too large. During the first two innings the portly Texan performed as if one run instead of the five given him would be sufficient. But in the third he was showered with four hits that put three into the Cubs' run column. Then when he surrendered another run in the fifth he was asked to resign, thus opening the way for Rookie John Rigney, who performed so elaborately that there was only one north side hit in three innings.

Bryant, who by his flop may have lost his chance at the season's inaugural, had such a gay time in a few minutes that two men walked, one singled and another doubled. Before Carleton could clean up the debris these four athletes had skipped across the plate. In the second what proved the deciding run was brewed on a pair of passes and a hit, but thereafter the lengthy right-hander turned out five good innings. What little pitching was necessary until the game was halted while the Sox were batting in the eighth was furnished by Bill Lee.

Bryant Too Wild.

Bryant's wildness in the first inning was of such high order that he pitched only four balls to Hayes, the leadoff batter. All four were wide of the plate. The first two throws to Kreevich also were wide, after which the ex-miner singled to left. Walker didn't choose to run the risk of cooling off while waiting for a possible pass, so he leaned against the first pitch and sent it to the left field scoreboard for a double, Hayes scoring. Then Radcliff walked and Bryant was rightfully judged ready for the comforts of a warm clubhouse.

Carleton strolled into the vacancy and it didn't take him long to discover that the riot hadn't subsided. His first pitch to Kuhel was converted into a single to right, Kreevich and Walker going home. The anti-Carleton movement continued with a pass to Owen and there still was none out. But dear old Berger came to the rescue. He rolled to Jurges for a double play on which Radcliff scored. Sewell concluded the

A Ring Champion Out of the Ring

Jimmy O'Malley, welterweight champion, who will represent Chicago against the Champions of Europe in Stadium May 18, examines, with the help of his mother, trophies won in numerous ring wars.

O'Malley's His Name; Boxing His Specialty

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The amateur welterweight champion of Europe is urged to drink lots of milk, eat plenty of green vegetables, and get eight hours' sleep every night so he'll be strong and healthy when he faces Chicago's representative, Jimmy O'Malley, in the international Golden Gloves matches in the Chicago Stadium May 18.

This European welterweight, who must remain anonymous until the championships are decided in Berlin April 29, will be at least as tough as Michael Murach of Germany, who won his fight as Europe's representative at that weight in last year's international Golden Gloves bouts.

This forecast is based upon the fact that Murach himself is competing again for a place on the team. No matter how tough this yet anonymous champion may turn out to be, he'd still better drink plenty of milk or O'Malley will get him—whether his name is John Doe, Giovanni Doevini, Juan Doerello, Jean De Veaux, Ivan Doevich, Johann Doburg, or Sean O'Doe.

Not One to Be Worried.

O'Malley isn't the boy to be worried by the fighting reputation of any nationality in Europe or the British Isles. He's beaten them all on his way to the top in Golden Gloves, Catholic Youth organization, and National A. A. U. tournaments.

It's just possible that O'Malley is hoping that that anonymous champion is Sean O'Doe, because in the intercity bouts with New York he and Phil Shea showed what happens when two tough Irishmen fight it out just between themselves. Here is an excerpt from the newspaper report of the intercity Golden Gloves bouts of March 21:

"The greatest fight of the night was between two Irish kids—Jimmy O'Malley of Chicago and Phil Shea of New York. They had the huge Garden throng up cheering for three full hours."

Good at a Critical Time.

In that fight O'Malley turned the tide definitly toward a Chicago victory. By beating Shea he tied the score at five to five after New York had won the first four bouts. If the going turns out to be unusually difficult in the international matches, the Chicago coaches will feel mighty confident in sending O'Malley into the ring at a critical moment.

A glance at O'Malley's record shows the basis for that confidence. Since he started fighting in October, 1936, he has been beaten only twice. He squared accounts for one of those defeats by knocking out his adversary, John Kelly, in a return match. A return match with the other successful opponent, Stanley Murczyk, has not yet been arranged. Against those two

Stewart's One Day Vacation Halved by Friends, Train

Boston, Mass., April 15.—(AP)—Enthusiastic friends and a late train today cheated Bill Stewart of about half of his one day vacation at home.

First, the train bearing the manager of the victorious Blackhawks from Chicago was an hour late and when Bill finally arrived in the South station, he stepped into a crowd of 200 admirers, who made him their happy prisoner for several more hours.

Stewart and his wife, who were greeted by their 18 year old son, Bill Jr., and Stewart's 80 year old mother, Mrs. Margaret E. Stewart, were whisked to the statehouse by Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly and a siren screaming police cavalcade.

It was midafternoon before the Stewarts were able to break away and depart for their home, where Bill will remain until tomorrow afternoon, when he is scheduled to officiate the Boston Red Sox-Bees game.

He will work the sixth and last Red Sox-Bees exhibition and then will return west to cover his first 1938 National league umpiring assignment.

Henderson, Strain to Play in North, South Tennis Final

Pinehurst, N. C., April 15.—(AP)—Archie Henderson and Robert Strain, both of the University of North Carolina, will meet tomorrow in the final of the North and South tennis tournament.

HOWARD, RIDDLE ACCEPT TERMS FOR MATCH RACE

War Admiral's Owner Approves Stall Gate.

New York, April 15.—[Special.]—The Westchester Racing association, through its vice president, Cornelius V. Whitney, announced today that its terms for the $100,000 match between War Admiral and Seabiscuit at Belmont Park on May 30 had been met by the respective owners, Samuel D. Riddle and Charles S. Howard. The conditions follow:

1. Purse of $100,000 to go to the winner.
2. Both Mr. Howard and Mr. Riddle must give notice to the association not later than 10 a. m. on the day of the match that the track condition is satisfactory.
3. If it is necessary to postpone the race it will be pushed forward to a future date agreeable to both, but not later than June 23.
4. Each horse must carry 126 pounds over a mile and a quarter distance.
5. Two suitable stall gates will be furnished by the Westchester Racing association and the start will be made in the same way as in the Suburban handicap.

Riddle Accepts Stall Gates.

The only point not made clear, but one which horsemen consider of little consequence, was whether Johnny Pollard would ride Seabiscuit. It is a known fact that Mr. Howard wants Pollard to ride his horse and no objection has been raised. It merely is a question of whether the jocky recovers sufficiently from the broken collarbone he suffered in a fall at Santa Anita two months ago to fulfill the Memorial day engagement.

Mr. Riddle's acceptance of the stall gates instead of the walkup start was considered a sportsmanlike gesture on his part. His main objection from the beginning was that his horse would not receive a fair deal if such methods were effected.

War Admiral is a naturally impatient, anxious horse at the post. He probably inherited that trait from his sire, Man o' War, who also was nervous and irritable at the start of a contest.

Injury Causes Fear of Gate.

But War Admiral's dislike for the stall gate is more than an inherited trait. It is a hatred for it born in the Belmont stakes last year. While leaving it in that event the colt hit himself on a part of the gate and tore a quarter of his foot away. It was one of the worst cuts horsemen had ever seen. War Admiral was on the hospital list for six months but that long absence did not cause him to forget that starting machine. He becomes fractious when he sees it and in his races since then has refused to enter a stall gate.

It was in the Belmont stakes War Admiral proved his high courage. With a large part of his foot torn away he ran the best race of his career, doing the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5, which equalled the American record for the distance and clipped one-fifth of a second from the track mark established by Man o' War in 1920. While turning in that record breaking performance, War Admiral carried 126 pounds. His sire established the mark when shouldering only 118 pounds.

Shift Two Dates.

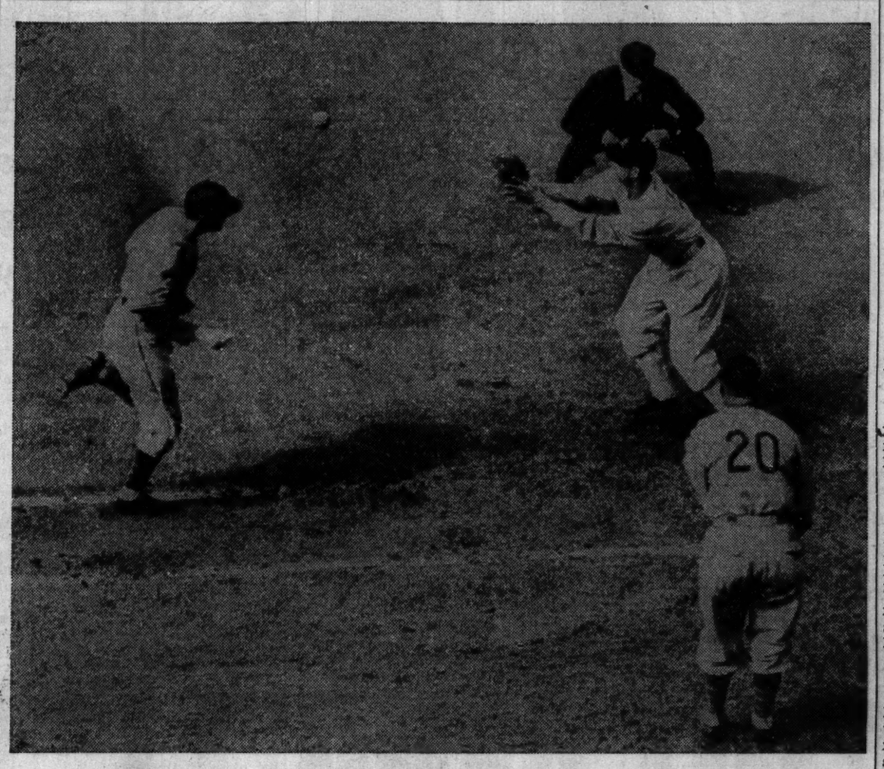
The New York racing season begins tomorrow at Jamaica with the Paumanok handicap as the traditional feature of the Metropolitan Jockey club's meeting. Eight have been named for the $7,500 added 6 furlong sprint, which will be run as the fifth event on the program.

To avoid conflict with the $100,000 match race the Westchester association changed dates of two of its important stake events. The Suburban handicap, originally scheduled for May 30, was moved up to May 28, and the Coaching club American Oaks was shifted to June 2.

Football Player, 20, Dies; Injured in Spring Practice

Barbourville, Ky., April 15.—[Special.]—Steve Stamper, Union college football and basketball player, died today from injuries received in spring football practice last Wednesday. Stamper, a junior, was 20 years old.

G-r-r-r! Sight of Cub Uniforms Roils White Sox



Here's the finish of the first play of Chicago's baseball season. Stanley Hack of the Cubs is thrown out after bunting. Joe Kuhel is covering the bag and Roy Johnson is on the coaching lines. Umpire Pinelli is calling the play. The throw is coming from Johnny Whitehead, who pitched the first five innings. The Sox, who hadn't been going any too well lately, snapped into action at the sight of the Cub uniforms and won, 5 to 4.

Max Schmeling Will Clash with Dudas Tonight

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAMBURG, Germany, April 15.—Steve Dudas, the 24 year old American who will fight Max Schmeling here tomorrow night, was discovered on weighing in today to be almost the German's physical twin. Schmeling weighed 194 pounds and Dudas 194½.

They are approximately the same height, with a little advantage for Schmeling. They have the same reach and much the same build. The resemblance is so striking it would be easy to take one for the elder brother of the other. Schmeling is 32 years old.

Take Dudas Seriously.

The American, during his training here, has achieved more of a reputation than he had when he arrived. The impression that he was just another sparring partner for Schmeling still prevails, but Dudas has given his sparring partners such a rough time and has trained so furiously that his record has been studied and promoters have been able to advertise him as a man who cannot be knocked out and is a terrible hitter.

This advertising has been good for the gate. Because of political events tickets had not sold any too well, but in the last few days, Hanseaten Halle reports, there has been a sudden lift. The net gate now is estimated at $200,000.

Fear Max Is Slowing Down.

Despite the ballyhoo, no one here expects Dudas to win. The German sports writing community take the view that Schmeling will get down to work on him in about the fourth round and knock him out somewhere between the tenth and twelfth. The Germans' interest is partly in the length of the fight and whether it tires Max.

German fans are beginning to worry about Max's age. His failure to knock out Ben Foord started a whispering campaign. The idea is getting about that Schmeling is slowing down and isn't what he used to be.

A brother act caught the fancy of the crowd in the American Bowling Congress tournament at the Coliseum early last night when George and John Stephanchick of Lorain, O., totaled 671 and 682, respectively, in the singles division. Though the totals missed the high ten standing board, they would have placed the pair in the lead—and a likely championship—had they been rolled in the doubles.

Gagliardi Falters.

After totaling 1,172 on games of 358-368-446 in the two man division, the pair found the range in the solo competition when George, whose previous A. B. C. competition was limited to last year's tournament, rolled up counts of 207-247-212, while John, who had competed in three previous national meets, hit 212-253-216. Two 8-10 splits between strikes in the second and third game kept John out of the 700 class.

Another 1937 American Bowling congress champion relinquished his title when Gene Gagliardi, Mount Vernon, N. Y., who won the singles event with 749 on games of 266, 277, 206 last year at New York, fell 214 pints short of his 1937 total. Gagliardi hit only 535 on games of 171, 204, 160.

Blouin Gets 645.

Jimmy Blouin, Blue Island, Ill., who defeated all who faced him in match competition ten years ago, showed a flash of his old form when he pounded out a 645 total on games of 223, 234, 188 in the doubles event, paired with Jack Bruck. Bruck contributed only 516, however, to give the pair a total of 1,161.

BATTLE JACK, last away and forced wide for racing room swinging for stretch, moved up sharply and, under strong handling drew out under driving tactics. BLIND EAGLE, rated to stretch, closed with belated rush on outside. DOG FLOWER was hard used setting the pressing pace with HAPPY CODE and tired. SIR BEVIDERE went close up from beginning. HAPPY CODE stopped badly. HYPOCRITE went evenly. BULL WHIP had flash of early speed and faltered.

GERALD, rushed to forward position at once, followed the pace but could not threaten despite strong handling. SIAM made repeated efforts to better position along backstretch and was tiring at end. O'Malley's His Name; Boxing His Specialty defeats O'Malley has a record of twenty-six victories, ten of them by knockouts.

He's a Very Busy Young Man.

His last few months have been packed with activity. In the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions he beat Owen Davis and Elwood McReynolds and knocked out Jimmy Pierce. In the Golden Gloves semi-finals and finals his performance was crisp and decisive. He knocked out Milton Bess and came back an hour later to stop Marvin Liddell.

Then O'Malley went on to New York for his above mentioned victory over Shea in the intercity Golden Gloves matches. Still he didn't rest. Early this month he was fighting again—this time in the National A. A. U. tournament in Boston. He faced four opponents, winning decisions over three and knocking out the other in the final.

After the international Golden Gloves bouts he'll have time for a brief rest. Then he'll be off to fill engagements in London. He was selected as the outstanding boxer of the National A. A. U. tournament and presented the Sir Charles Higham cup, which was offered as an expression of good will between English and American amateur boxers. The award carried with it the trip to England, which O'Malley will make this summer.

Wins Ross Trophy, Too.

O'Malley is more than a good fighter. He's a good sportsman, too. On the final night of the Golden Gloves tournament he was awarded the Barney Ross trophy offered to the welterweight boxer showing the best sportsmanship during the tournament.

O'Malley, who is 18 years old, lives with his mother at 1210 South Oakley boulevard. He hopes to make a career out of fighting, planning to turn professional after he has a little more experience and puts on more weight. He hopes to add enough pounds to move up at least one division, believing there is more opportunity among the heavier weights.

CHICAGO MILLS OPEN SEMI-PRO SEASON TODAY

The Chicago Mills will open the 1938 semi-pro baseball season this afternoon, playing Armour Tech in Mills stadium, 2700 West Lake street. The Mills were to have played Elgin tomorrow afternoon, but the game has been called off, Manager Bill Harley said.

Harley will start a team of recruits this afternoon, but several regulars will play before the game is over. The Mills and the Spencer Coals will represent Chicago in the Tri-State Semi-pro league this season, opening their schedule May 1.

Sox to Use Cain; Cubs Pick Davis

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The city series scene shifts to Wrigley field today. The game will begin at 2 o'clock. Merritt [Sugar] Cain, the languorous kine fancier, will start for the White Sox. Curt Davis will occupy a similar spot for the Cubs. To the surprise of some, Cain has been the best of the Sox pitchers after a belated training start. Carleton was to have started, but had to replace Bryant yesterday. Cain will be replaced by Thornton Lee after several innings.

The weather man was guilty of rank discrimination against the ball folks yesterday. It was in the 40s at Comiskey park, while folks less than 50 miles from Chicago basked in a warm sun and watched the mercury linger in the 70s. The chill held down the crowd to about 6,000.

Charley Comiskey II. worked out in his last year's uniform, which has become quite skimp. Prexy Lou's 14 year old son may get the shortstop job on his papa's team if he gets so he can go to his left a little faster. He has strong wrists and a great pair of hands.

Painters recently have slung a lot of green paint in Comiskey park and the cellar appearance which prevailed under the grandstand has vanished. Lattice work has dressed up the caverns no end.

Steps have been built to the radio chain booths. Formerly the vocal artists had to wade through the press box to get to their havens and sometimes were forced to listen to coarse language. Now the ether boys will have no truck with scriveners unless they choose.

The elevator to the press box which Mr. Comiskey has been discussing sketchily for two years still is in the blueprint room, investigation yesterday revealed.

Bone experts are studying a new set of X-ray negatives of Phil Cavaretta's injured arm. They have made no guess on the date of Phil's return to service.

The front end of yesterday's game wasn't exactly peppery. It took 45 minutes to play the first two innings.

Among those who were happy to get back in a big league park was Umpire Harry Geisel. A radiant sartorialist, Harry has been greatly embarrassed on the road by the necessity of donning his work clothes at his hotel and walking through the lobby in his sweat socks with his spiked shoes under his arm.

The White Sox train was an hour and a half late. It hit a truck, killing the driver, at Moline early yesterday morning.

It took no board of strategy to convince Manager Grimm that Clay Bryant didn't have his stuff yesterday. Clay had neither control nor guile, and did not see a putout accomplished in his behalf.

Monty Stratton, injured Sox pitcher, is going to start a course of treatments for his trick bicep.

The Cubs, who had intended to embark for Cincinnati Monday, have decided to go Sunday night. They have been promised the use of the park for practice purposes Monday.

inning with a gentle tap to Carleton.

Carleton got by on a one run assessment in the second, but his pitching was not exactly swell, as attested by the appearance of six batters at the plate. The first happening in this bit of agony was a pass to Whitehead. Hayes fouled out and Kreevich walked. The Cub partisans stopped their shivering long enough to applaud the fanning of Walker, but an instant later Radcliff singled to right, Whitehead scoring, and Kreevich going to third. Then Kuhel slapped a torrid liner toward right, but Collins, by leaping, managed to deflect the drive toward Herman. The latter picked it up and threw it back to Collins for the third out.

The Cubs, after two hitless innings, got into the business of scoring when O'Dea opened the third with a single through Hayes. Carleton dumped a single in short center. After Hack's retirement on a fly to Radcliff in deep left, Herman doubled to right, O'Dea counting the first of three runs. Collins doubled into the left field corner, sending Carleton and Herman over the plate. A little more excitement appeared imminent when Demaree whistled a fly to deep right, but in some way Walker managed to get a grip on the ball. Then Marty walked and Triplett forced him.

Fourth Mildly Exciting.

The fourth was mildly exciting for both pitchers. The Cubs' portion opened with a single to right off Jurges' bat. It didn't disturb Whitehead. He dispatched the next three batters without delay. In the Sox half Hayes singled to left after Herman had thrown out Whitehead. Carleton shook off Kreevich on a pop to Jurges and personally handled Walker's modest tap.

Two were gone in the fifth before the Cubs began working on one run which cut the Sox lead in half. A pass to Demaree was the first happening. Marty then was poked in the ribs by a pitched ball. Triplett drove a two bagger against the left field wall and Demaree scored. Jurges flied to Walker.

The Sox came close to annoying Carleton in the sixth but a double play halted the threat. Sewell led off with a single to right and after one was out he moved to third on Hayes' single to right. Then Kreevich grounded to Collins, whose throw to Jurges forced Hayes at second. Jurges returned the throw to Collins and Kreevich was doubled.

Third Strike Fools Tony.

The daily introduction of Tony Lazzeri, the ex-Yankee, occurred in the eighth, much to the regret of the famous Italian. Jurges walked with one out and after two were out Lazzeri was called to bat for Carleton. Lazzeri wasn't looking when Rigney slipped over a third strike.

Lee began the Sox eighth with a pass to Owen, who went to second on Berger's bunt. Then Umpire Geisel decided that between rain, low visibility, and the chilly atmosphere the affair should be abandoned. There were no objections, not even from the Cubs.

Carroll Mangas, Purdue's starting pitcher, held the visitors hitless with the exception of the third inning, but was relieved at the end of the seventh for a pinch hitter as Purdue rallied to tie the score at 3 all. Score:

MAROONS TO MEET IRISH.

The University of Chicago baseball team will play Notre Dame on Greenwood field today. Paul Amundsen, 6 feet 6 inch senior, will start on the mound for Chicago. Notre Dame will use either Ennio Arboit or John Goncher.

The Maroons have been hard hit by the loss of their captain, French White, who turned professional. However, the Maroons have enough strength in hitting, particularly in the middle of the lineup, where Jerry Sivesind, Bob Meyer, and Roy Soderlind do the swinging, to give Notre Dame trouble.

'Play Ball; It's for Your Own Good'— Ruth to Di Maggio

New York, April 15.—[Special.]—Joe Di Maggio is making a big mistake. Take that from Babe Ruth, who in his day with the Yankees, was no mean salary squawker himself.

The Babe discussed the Di Maggio holdout today while playing golf.

"In failing to make sure of being with the ball club on opening day Di Maggio is not doing the right thing, and I am sure that unless he comes in soon his condition will suffer and his batting drop," said Ruth.

While the Babe had many a hard tussle with Col. Jacob Ruppert, not once did he fail to play in the opening game because of being a holdout. One year Ruth did not sign until opening day, and he was in the game that afternoon.

"Whether Di Maggio is worth $25,000 or $30,000 is a personal issue between Jake and him and it really is none of my business," Ruth continued. "But from the standpoint of playing ball, Joe is pulling a boner.

"I believe the Yankees could win the pennant even if Joe held out all year."

The Yankees are reconciled to opening another season, their third in a row, without the fly chaser from San Francisco. From now on Di Maggio's absence is to cost him money however. Figuring on the basis of the $25,000 the Yanks are willing to pay him for 154 games, he will lose $162 for every day he remains out of the fold from next Monday on.

Ruth said the Yanks were alone in their league again. In the National he looked for a four-club race, among the pitching-strong Giants, the hitting Cards and Pirates, and the evenly balanced Cubs. On Tuesday Ruth will see the Giants open with Boston here.

NEWS OF FINANCIAL AND GRAIN MARKETS

DOLLAR'S VALUE SLIPS FURTHER; STERLING AT $5

Roosevelt Program Disturbs Market.

The dollar declined again in foreign exchange dealings yesterday on selling attributed to concern over inflationary aspects of President Roosevelt's spending program. Trading was light, due to the closing of the London and Paris markets for the Good Friday holiday.

The pound sterling rose ⅝ of a cent to $5 and the French franc gained 0.00⅜ of a cent to 3.16¼ cents.

Guilder Makes Gain.

The Netherlands guilder again was in good demand, rising 0.09 of a cent to 53.74 cents. Also making gains were the Swiss franc, up 0.03 of a cent to 23.07, and the Belgium belga, up 0.01 of a cent to 16.88 cents.

Gold imports during the week ended April 8 totaled $3,677,811, compared with a six month high mark of $53,224,817 in the preceding week, the department of commerce reported. Most of the gold imported during the April 8 week came from England.

Reports Silver Imports.

The department also reported that silver imports totaled $6,138,912, of which $545,436 was shipped by Mexico. The treasury disclosed Thursday that the United States will still buy Mexican silver if offered on the New York market despite the suspension of an agreement to purchase a regular quota of 5,000,000 ounces a month.

Of the week's silver imports $4,500,000 was Chinese coins sold under an agreement between the United States and Chinese treasuries.

Mexico Sells Some of Seized Oil Abroad

MEXICO CITY, April 15.—(AP)—Gustavo Espinosa Mireles, head of the National Petroleum Export company, announced today that "some oil" from the expropriated properties of seventeen American and British oil companies would be shipped next week to foreign markets. Mireles said he would leave shortly for Tampico to inspect shipping facilities.

Gustavo Espinosa Mireles.

Informed persons said the government had closed a deal with Francis W. Rickett, British promoter, and Bernard E. Smith, New York broker, for the sale of "a very small quantity" of refined petroleum products. Rickett and Smith were reported to be trying to find tankers to transport their purchase.

Officials denied a published report that the two had bought 15,000,000 barrels of Mexican oil.

Agree to End Import Surtax.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, April 15. — The Mexican government has agreed to remove the 3 per cent surtax on imported articles collectable by Mexican consuls abroad before shipment to Mexico. A promise to this effect was transmitted to Washington today via diplomatic channels.

This surtax which was established on Sept. 15, last, has been vigorously attacked by United States exporters who have held it represents a tax collected within the territorial confines of another country.

The removal will constitute at least a gesture toward the U. S. in reciprocation for the renewed silver buying and the moral support of President Lazaro Cardenas' government.

Conversations also are proceeding between the United States embassy and the Mexican government looking toward a modification of the prohibitive tarif barriers established late in January.

RAILROAD UNION LEADERS SPURN WAGE CUT PLEA

Lines May Turn to Mediation Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—Representatives of railway labor and management locked horns this afternoon over the suggestion of operators that labor accept a pay cut in order to aid the financially bogged industry.

Labor leaders in behalf of 1,000,000 railway workers flatly refused to accept a voluntary wage cut. At the same time they defied a threat by management representatives that railroads will invoke the railroad mediation act to enforce consideration of pay cuts.

Representatives of labor refused to discuss pay cuts after a conference of an hour and ten minutes with operator representatives. The labor representatives, headed by George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Labor Executives' association, walked out of the conference which was held in the office of John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, management unit.

Confer Again Next Week.

Before the conference broke up it was agreed that the two groups would meet again before any action is taken. The meeting will be held next week in the offices of Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee.

Harrison asserted that wage cuts would not be brought up at the Wheeler conference. Labor will not discuss voluntary cuts and will fight to the last ditch against any wage reduction.

"Wage cuts are out of the question," Harrison said. "I never heard of such a silly thing in my life. Management is trying to reduce buying power at the same time President Roosevelt is pouring out 4½ billion dollars in an attempt to increase buying power.

Won't Yield a Cent.

"They aren't going to get 1 cent from us. That's all there is to that. The carriers asked us to discuss a wage reduction and we replied: 'Hell, you're not going to get anything out of us.'

"We won't give them the whiskers from yesterday's shave."

The determined stand of the labor representatives leaves the next move squarely up to railway management, it was said. The executives of the association plan to call a meeting of the 140 class 1 railroads of the country after the Wheeler conference to seek enforcement of wage reductions under the railroad mediation act.

Seek 15 Per Cent Reduction.

No specific cut was presented to labor representatives. However, it was understood that the carriers desire a 15 per cent cut which would cut operating expenses by 270 million dollars a year.

Railroad management has insisted, throughout the recent federal consideration of the sorry financial plight of the 26 billion dollar industry, that what the carriers need is more money. Additional funds, it has been pointed out, can only be obtained immediately by increasing rates or lowering wages.

The interstate commerce commission recently granted a 5 per cent increase in freight rates where the lines had asked for a 15 per cent increase and has refused to increase coach passenger fares from 2 to 2½ cents a mile for eastern lines.

PARTNERS OF MORGAN FIRM CALLED BY SEC IN WHITNEY INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., April 15.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission decided today to question three partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. publicly next week on resuming its investigation into the failure of Richard Whitney & Co.

George Whitney.

The list is headed by George Whitney, on whom responsibility for continuing his brother, Richard, in the brokerage business was placed this week by members of governing committees of the New York Stock exchange and by questioning of counsel defending the interests of the exchange.

The others are Francis Bartow, who headed a last minute attempt to salvage the situation, according to testimony already heard, and Harry Davison, who participated in a discussion with George and Richard Whitney more than a year ago, when Richard Whitney said his brother "replenished" his capital and warned him against any further unsecured borrowing from their friends.

Rail Freight Bolstered by Coal Loadings

Principally because of a sharp increase in coal shipments, railroad freight loadings last week were almost the same as in the week ended April 2, the small decline being less than seasonal, figures of the Association of American Railroads showed yesterday.

The association reported 521,978 cars were loaded in the week ended April 9, a decrease of 17,511 cars, or 0.3 of 1 per cent, from the preceding week and 189,101, or 26.6 per cent, less than the corresponding week last year. The total was 42.5 per cent less than in the corresponding week of 1930.

Freight Decline Narrows.

Loadings of 523,489 cars in the week ended April 2 were 197,740, or 27.4 per cent, less than in the corresponding 1937 week. The decline from year ago figures was 24.3 per cent in the week ended March 26.

Coal shipments last week-end totaled 91,130 cars, an increase of 17,580 from the preceding week but still 25,000 less than in the corresponding week of 1937. Except for small gains in live stock, ore, and coke shipments, other classes of loadings were smaller than in the week of April 2. All groups showed declines from last year.

Group Loadings Compared.

FRISCO GRANTED 6 MONTHS' DELAY IN REORGANIZING

Washington, D. C., April 15.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission, which has insisted railroad reorganization proceedings be conducted as expeditiously as possible, granted today a six month postponement in the St. Louis-San Francisco railway reorganization case.

Some railroad authorities regarded the commission's action as official recognition that further progress in rail reorganization under present laws had been blocked by the drastic slump in earnings. Three bondholders' committees petitioned for the St. Louis-San Francisco delay. They contended it was impossible to obtain trustworthy data on future earnings.

As a result of this postponement, observers believed the commission might grant delays in other reorganization proceedings. About thirty cases now pending.

AYRES SAYS 1938 WILL BE SEVERE DEPRESSION YEAR

A gloomy business outlook was reported yesterday by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist for the Cleveland Trust company, in his monthly business summary. It is probable that 1938 will be the most severe depression year in American history with the exception of 1932, he asserted.

"Business activity appears to have completed the first phase of this renewed depression," he said, "and to have entered upon a second one. The first on lasted six months. It began last August and continued through February. It was initiated by a severe drop in stock prices in September and October.

"This was accompanied and followed by an abrupt decline in the volume of industrial production which was exceptionally rapid from August through December. During the same period commodity prices fell, especially raw materials."

Ayres said that during January, February, and March there were further decreases in the volume of production, but they were so small as to give reason for hoping that the bottom of the depression had been reached. But the second phase of the renewed depression period, which has been developing during the last six weeks, gives little ground for expecting a prompt recovery, he said.

Everyday Economics

Factors in Egg Production.

The age of the hen, the amount and quality of feed, the weather, and the health of the flock are the principal influences determining the average rate of egg production per hen. Chickens usually lay more eggs in the first laying year than in any other. That is why the proportion of pullets to old hens is highly important when feed costs and egg prices are such that a flock must have a high rate of egg production to be profitable.

The kind, amount, and preparation of feed will greatly affect the layers also. In times when egg prices are high, flock owners usually increase the amount of feed and take more care in preparing it.

Egg production in the first six months of the year, the federal bureau of agricultural economics has found, normally is about 60 per cent of the total production for the whole year. This relationship is of assistance in forecasting. Severe winters cause the egg production rate to fall below average, as was the case in 1929 and 1936. The regular changes in weather from month to month also influence the rate at which hens will lay.

According to the bureau, the number of eggs laid per 100 hens and pullets, on Dec. 1, averaged over the ten years, 1925-34, was 13.9. On Jan. 1, over the same ten years, the average number of eggs laid by 100 hens and pullets was 16.5, with succeeding months as follows: Feb. 1, 24.2 eggs; March 1, 38.4; April 1, 52.8; May 1, 55.1; June 1, 49.5; July 1, 42.2; Aug. 1, 36.9; Sept. 1, 32.4; Oct. 1, 25.0; Nov. 1, 17.0 eggs per 100 hens and pullets.

AM. TELEPHONE FAILS TO EARN $2.25 DIVIDEND

Republic Steel Has Loss for Quarter.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company failed in the first quarter of this year to earn its dividend requirement of $2.25 a share, and the Republic Steel corporation had a net loss of more than $3,000,000 for the same period, earnings reports showed yesterday.

W. S. Gifford reports smaller gain in telephones.

Consolidated net loss of Republic Steel totaled $3,062,564, compared with net profit in the corresponding 1937 quarter of $5,567,063, or $1.04 a common share.

Increased operating expenses and taxes were responsible for American Telephone's failure to cover dividend requirements for the first time since the second quarter of 1936, an analysis of the report showed.

American Telephone Earnings.

Net income of the parent company for the quarter ended March 31 amounted to $38,634,257, or $2.02 a share, which does not include the company's proportionate interest in undivided profits or losses of subsidiaries. In the corresponding 1937 quarter the company had net income of $43,582,625, or $2.33 a share. In the quarter ended June 30, 1936, earnings were equal to $1.97 a share.

Operating revenues of the parent company fell in the first 1938 quarter to $26,070,557, compared with $27,824,628 in the like 1937 quarter. Operating expenses, including taxes, climbed $1,264,347 to $23,092,574.

Quarterly Earnings Compared.

*Does not include the company's proportionate interest in the undivided profits or deficits of subsidiary companies. †Surplus.

For the 12 months ended March 31 the company had net income of $174,886,448, or $9.36 a share, against $183,966,081, or $9.85 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

Walter S. Gifford, president, told stockholders that the Bell system had a net gain of about 98,000 telephones in the first quarter of 1938, compared with a gain of 170,000 in the preceding quarter and 293,000 in the first 1937 quarter. The number of toll and long distance conversations, he said, was 2.5 per cent less than for the first three months of 1937.

Consolidated Income Lower.

The consolidated income account of the company for the three months ended Feb. 28 also showed sharply lower earnings because of increased operating expenses and taxes. The company had for the period consolidated net income of $36,242,620 applicable to parent company stock, equal to $1.94 a common share. This compared with $53,597,104, or $2.87 a share, in the corresponding three months of the preceding year. Operating revenues of the system totaled $260,476,833, up slightly from $257,708,061 in the quarter a year previously.

Taxes in the three months to Feb. 28 increased to $34,972,625 against $31,120,972 the year before. Operating expenses amounted to $180,201,926, compared with $167,228,880. The company's net operating income dropped to $45,302,282, compared with $59,358,209 in the corresponding quarter of the preceding year.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Flora of Chicagoland

April 15, 1938.

WHEN an early spring wild flower equips itself with a sort of "overcoat" to withstand chilly April winds, it is another example of nature looking out for the little plants which hurry to blossom before the leaves of trees cut off their sunshine.

The hepatica or liverwort is the wild flower on the farm that best illustrates what early spring plants ought to wear in the form of cold resisting equipment. This beautiful wild flower, one of the first to push above the ground, comes up with fuzzy stems, which may be considered as a form of protection against the cold.

Another wise precaution on the part of the colorful hepatica is its slowness in growing leaves. The plant is willing to rest its case on furry stems and beautiful blossoms. It's in no hurry to grow leaves such as the dogtooth violet now is pushing above the ground.

Flowers and dead leaves of the hepatica.

Flowers Come First.

The first job is to get the flowers up into the spring sunshine. April sunshine temporarily may yield to cold winds and even snow. But this makes no difference to the hardy hepatica.

We like to find the hepaticas every spring before they are in blossom in order to see the way they carefully uncoil their protected stems above the dead leaves. In many respects this wild flower is more truly symbolical of the way spring wakens the dead woods and brings life to them than any other plant.

In April you see everywhere in the woods dead leaves on the ground and apparently lifeless oaks overhead. Even the leaves on the hepatica, still clinging to the plant, are brown and lifeless. And then out of this background of last year's growth comes the stems and flowers of the new season . . . the gay colorful blossoms that long have been favorites of outdoor fans. This week the blue, lavender, purple, and even pinkish hepaticas are the dominant wild flowers . . . true symbols of the season.

Burrough's Appreciation.

John Burroughs summed up the outdoor fan's regard for the hepatica. He said: "There are many things left for May, but nothing fairer, if as fair, as the first flower, the hepatica. . . . When at the maturity of its charms it is certainly the gem of the woods. What an individuality it has! No two clusters alike; all shades and sizes."

After finding many clusters of hepaticas during our hike over the farm our attention was then taken by finding three different kinds of anemones . . . a treat that we did not expect when we started on our hike. In walking through the east woods, not far from the swollen creek and the old windmill, we came across several patches of false rue anemones.

This wild flower is common in Illinois and likes moist places for its growth. The delicate white flowers of this plant are as large as of the spring beauty. Then we found the true rue anemone, which generally has three flowers. The middle one blooms first.

Find the Windflower.

The third anemone which we found was the wood anemone or windflower, which blossoms from April on until June in many Chicagoland woods. The solitary flower of this plant [about one inch in diameter] may be white or delicately tinted with blue or pink on itself on the outside.

This is the flower that Pliny, the Roman author, referred to when he said that it only could blossom when the wind blew! If this plant needs strong winds for its development the windflowers on the farm and elsewhere in Chicagoland ought to do well after being subjected to the gales that swept the middle west about a week ago.
